Playback bugs Yukon member

Erik Nielson told the Commons that earlier Monday afternoon he had just finished a call to a constituent from his office when "there was after that a disconnect and then I heard to my surprise a repeat of my comments and those of my constituent."

The conversation playback continued for about 10 seconds and Nielsen said "the repeat was speeded up. It sounded like a 33 record being played at 45."

The Yukon MP asked Speaker James Jerome to investigate the telephones of all members of Parliament to determine "the possible monitoring or tapping of members' telephones."

Jerome said he hoped there was "some sort of technical explanation" and promised a report soon.

Legislature faces CUPE pickets

By STEPHEN BREWER
Colonist Reporter

Garbage piled at the impromptu heliport garbage site off Esquimalt Road caught fire Monday night, for the third time since Victoria city outside workers have been on strike.

This time 15-mile-an-hour winds drove flames and loose burning material toward gasoline storage tanks a few hundred yards away.

Victoria fire department's full night force of 14 men and four trucks was called in to douse the flames, and it took more than an hour. The last fire at the temporary dump took one truck's crew five hours to put completely out.

Fireman at the scene Monday night said the fire could have started from smouldering garbage being dumped, but it was just as likely that some young prankster touched it off.

Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees may throw a picket line around the British Columbia legislative buildings today in an effort to stop workers there from emptying the government's garbage.

Jim Walker, president of the City of Victoria outside workers' local, said late Monday his local was considering the pickets in an attempt to keep members of the British Columbia Government Employees Union from hauling paper trash away from the buildings.

The trash, normally carried to a recycling depot in city trucks, had been accumulating in a central courtyard of the Legislature complex since last week, when Local 50 began a legal strike against the city.

Monday morning BCGEU members — acting under orders from the government — apparently collected the trash and hauled it away.

Walker said his union has picked up the Legislature's trash "for years and years . . . and we consider it our work."

Local 50's executive was attempting to arrange a meeting with the executive of the BCGEU component executive responsible for the trash removal Monday, Walker said.

If the meeting could not be arranged, or if its results were unsatisfactory, Local 50 would very probably throw up a picket line in an effort to keep the provincial workers from "doing our work," he added.

Spokesmen for both the Greater Victoria School District and CUPE Local 382 — now in a legal position to strike the schools — said late Monday there would likely be no interruption of classes in District 61 today.

The statements came as area municipalities, School District 61 and the Capital Regional Board continued preparations to lock out their workers in the wake of last week's strike by Local 50.

"A number of things point to something happening early this week," Bill Stavdal, spokesman for the regional bargaining group, said Monday.

Lockout notice against all CUPE locals involved in negotiations with the group — whose number includes Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Sidney, the regional district and the school board — has expired.

But lockouts against at least three CUPE locals cannot become legally effective until provincially-appointed mediator Clark Gilmour files his reports on each dispute with Labor Minister William King.

Efforts are still being made to reach agreements with CUPE locals in Sidney and Esquimalt and with the school district's office staff.

Neither Sooke nor Saanich school district is involved in the strike-lockout confrontation, as trustees of those districts have elected to bargain individually with CUPE locals representing their workers.

All operations, including night school, will continue uninterrupted in those districts, spokesmen said Monday.

Pickets joke, City Hall shivers

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Garbage was piling up, streets were beginning to look unsightly, and a weary managerial staff inside Victoria's City Hall was trying desperately to meet urgent needs as the strike by the city's outside workers entered its second week Monday.

In a City Hall office normally crowded by dozens of employees now refusing to cross the outside staff's picket lines, lone city comptroller Mason Sheldrick was sorting through hundreds of letters that had arrived in the morning mail.

Claire Songhurst, a non-union secretary, was on the switchboard, trying to answer a never-ending stream of phone calls about where to deposit garbage, when and how to pay water bills, and where to pay tax bills.

Assistant city engineer William Jorgensen was wandering about City Hall in work clothes, ready to respond to such emergencies as broken water mains.

In the second-floor cafeteria, Mayor Peter Pollen, in a light-grey business suit, was waxing philosophical about union demands, the community's deteriorating ability to pay for those demands, and the possibility of ultimate chaos.

Pollen said the city "has a non-union firm" willing to fill the tanks, but "we don't want a confrontation."

Scattered few supervisors try to keep things going

The result is no heat in City Hall, the court building, the police station, a number of shops in Centennial Square, and the Silver Threads centre.

City Manager James Bramley said the biggest problem is the lack of garbage collection.

Bramley said people were "just dumping it by the side of the road." He urged residents to carry the garbage farther, toward the rear of the heliport.

Sheldrick said he was opening up to 4,000 letters a week. That's besides his regular job, which includes preparation of the payroll.

He said although the inside and outside staff were now off the payroll, there were still firemen, policemen and all the managerial staff to look after.

Outside workers on picket duty appeared in good spirits. They were joking and laughing as they paraded up and down in front of City Hall.

Spokesmen for both management and union said hopes for a quick settlement of the strike were fast fading.

Pollen said the most frustrating thing was that the Canadian Union of Public Employees had never stated its demands clearly.

"Very late in the game, they told us they want parity with Alberni, but that was never mentioned early on," he said.

"They also vaguely hint that they want parity with the provincial employees, but never said so during bargaining," Pollen added.

"If they only told us what they want," he said.

Immigration policy study

Open door—who and how?

OTTAWA (CP) — A Government study of immigration policy Monday raised the possibilities of an immigration quota system and preference for French-speaking immigrants, but was accompanied by a promise of non-discrimination on the basis of race, color or creed.

The four-volume study, tabled in the Commons by Immigration Minister Robert Andras, offered Canadians four alternatives on immigration policy and said important decisions must be made now which would affect the country's population and life style for decades to come.

The study, known as the green paper, is intended to stimulate public and political debate and consultation.

"What finally is at stake is no less than the future of Canada's population — its size, rate of growth, distribution and composition . . ." Andras told the Commons.

He said no single policy choice would offer a complete answer to the complex problems of rapidly growing big-city populations resulting from increased immigration pressures. He outlined plans for extensive consultations with the public before final decisions are made in about a year.

The policy alternatives outlined in the 570-page document include:

● Immigration quotas with annual global targets for immigration, including quotas for zones or countries.

● Annual global ceilings with no fixed immigration quota system, allowing the government to set a limit on immigration from all areas in consultation with the provinces.

● Stronger measures to gear the existing open-ended immigration system more closely to job availability — probably resulting in a downgrading or outright elimination of the nominated relatives class of immigrant, or;

● Retention of the existing system, which sets no quotas but requires most classes of immigrants to score at least 50 points on a 100-point grading system.

Andras said the alternatives were "critical to the very fabric of the Canadian community."

He said outside the Commons that the government wanted to introduce a new Immigration Act to replace the existing 1952 legislation by fall, and see it made law by early next year.

Andras said the government was determined to retain key principles in any new immigration policy — non-discrimination against newcomers because of race, color or creed, continued acknowledgment of the need to reunite families and to give special aid to refugees, and continued linking of immigration to domestic job demands.

He said outside the Commons that he did not expect racism to become a threatening element in the national immigration debate that the governmnent hoped to generate with the green paper.

"Canadians have really been extraordinarily tolerant in accepting strangers within our gates," he said.

New immigration policies will have to place strong emphasis on immigration from French-speaking countries if

'Conscript young people to cure jobless problem'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of British Columbia geologist says a three-year period of compulsory national service for every citizen is the only way to cure unemployment woes in Canada's primary industries.

Speaking before a Vancouver Institute audience, Harry Warren said there are many necessary but unpleasant jobs to do, without which "society, as we know it, will grind to a halt."

Since no one has yet come up with an equitable and generally acceptable way of persuading people to do these jobs, Warren said, compulsory service — "before (a man or woman) is allowed to proceed, largely at state expense, to higher education or chosen avocation" — may be necessary.

Warren admitted he doubts anybody will agree with his idea, but added, "Surely I am justified in asking you to come up with a better one."

Under the Warren scheme, each citizen could opt for service in the armed forces or a primary industry, such as mining or lumber.

"It might be possible for religious and conscientious objectors to do their stint in one of the more boring of the service industries," he said.

During the compulsory service period, he added, workers should receive their food, clothing, board and pocket money — "but no more."

Saying that his scheme would reduce unemployment and produce wealth — "not merely distribute and redistribute (it)" — Warren said the present lack of willingness by mine workers to take jobs in remote northern areas is "contributing directly to both unemployment and inflation."

Warren criticized the labor movement because it "dislikes industries which are energy-intensive and light on manpower."

He said he made a tour of northern mines two years ago and found all of them in need of more workers.

Deadly gas leak 'too minor' to trip shutoff

DENVER CITY, Tex. (UPI) — An oil company spokesman said Monday the leak in a pumping station that killed nine people was so small it failed to trigger an automatic device designed to prevent the escape of dangerous gas.

"It was a terrible accident and we must spend many days to make sure we know what caused it and how to prevent anything like this ever happening again," said Carter Barcus.

"We have an automatic shutoff valve which is activated by a pressure change. But for some reason the leak was so minor that it did not cause a major pressure change, and therefore the automatic valve did not shut off."

The small leak caused by the failure of a safety device in the wellhead began after dark Saturday and, by the time it had been closed and the cloud of hydrogen sulphide and carbon dioxide gas dispersed, nine people nearby had died.

Police equipped with breathing devices Sunday morning found J. C. Patton, his wife, Glenda, their daughter, Deede, 17, Mrs. Patton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. May, and Mrs. Patton's sister and husband, Alma Lee Amerson, and his wife, Edith, and Clara Peevy, 14, an overnight guest.

Steve Sparger, 19, an employee of Atlantic Richfield who came to investigate the leak, was found dead in his truck.

A neighbor of the Pattons, Mrs. Tom Merrill, may have been the first to notice the gas. She called Mrs. Patton, who reported the bad-smelling gas to police.

A few minutes later Mrs. Patton called Mrs. Merill back to say her husband had collapsed. Then, still later, she called her pastor and asked him to pray for her and her family.

Police officer Jim Tucker was the first person to reach the Patton home.

"The Pattons and their guests attempted to get out, but just didn't make it," he said. "We found them lying in and beside their cars."

Bomb blasts bank tower

DENVER (UPI) — A bomb planted in a restroom ripped through the sixth floor of the Central Bank tower Monday, injuring four persons including a man who smelled the burning fuse and tried to put it out.

Headed global giant

Food firm boss jumps to death

Duffy said Black's wallet and a substantial sum of money were still on the body when it was found in the middle of the elevated roadway.

Police listed the death as a suicide.

The financier, 53, headed a global business empire dealing in growing, shipping and selling food, but also controlling railways, shipping lines and a telecommunications firm. He had 53,000 employees.

United Brands' twin bases are John Morrell and Co., with headquarters in Chicago, and the United Fruit Co. Division in Boston.

Jets collide four escape

WINDHAM, Vt. (UPI) — Two air force FB11S jet fighter-bombers sideswiped near Magic Mountain ski resort late Monday night, but all four crew members survived when they ejected from the planes, the U.S. Air Force said. There were no ground casualties, a spokesman said, but pieces of wreckage showered the Windham-Londonderry area.

Police baffled over slasher

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police conceded Monday they were stalemated in their search for the mysterious "slasher," the killer of nine single men who switched his attacks on his last two victims from the down-and-out skid road area to middle-class Hollywood. The throats of each victim were cut to the spine.

Yule presents grow . . . and grow . . .

Staff buffaloes boss

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — It is nice to be nice to the boss but it can be overdone.

That's the way Dan Vos, a contractor at nearby Ada, Mich., feels about his 20 employees and the nice little things they insist on doing for him.

In 1971 Vos' workers bought him 400 trout as a Christmas present for his 20-acre ranch. He put them into two ice-free, spring-fed ponds and keeps feeding them.

In 1972 the workers came up with a pair of Hereford calves. They were later butchered but Vos bought other calves and started raising them.

In 1973 the Yule season was comparatively easy for Vos. His employees bought him a present that didn't require feeding—landscape paintings.

Last Christmas they bought him a present that he doesn't want to return but is going to get rid of. For the man who has everything, it is too much for Vos.

The construction crew's 1974 gift was two buffaloes, a bull and a young cow. They now weigh 1,500 pounds between them.

The problem is that a corral built near the ponds to hold the two growing buffaloes is too small, Vos said, and besides two donkeys and a pony share the space.

"They should have more room to roam around—about 20 acres," Vos said.

So the buffaloes have to go —when he can find a new home for them.

Canada is to remain bilingual, the green paper says.

The study said Canada was under no obligation to accept immigrants to help solve the world population crisis and did not have to increase immigration to provide consumer markets for domestic industry.

Projections in the study showed that Canada's present population would increase only by about three million by the early years of the next century if immigration were cut off and growth depended solely on the decreasing national fertility rate.

Future growth would depend largely on immigration the study said. It outlined a series of projections which would see a national population of 28 million to 34 million by 2001. It favored a moderate rate of immigration resulting in a 30-32-million population by the turn of the century.

The paper says the French language had been losing ground to English over the last two decades because of a sharp drop in the Quebec fertility rate and a large inflow of immigrants who do not speak French.

The problem was "basic to our national life and character," said the four-volume analysis of future immigration policy alternatives.

"It is so basic that federal policy cannot ignore the effects future immigration may have on the relationship between the numbers of English-speaking and French-speaking members of Canada's population."

The implications of the French decline are "clear for national unity" and point to a need to broaden policies "that will tend to favor the admission" of immigrants likely to settle within French-speaking communities, the study says.

The Quebec fertility rate — the number of children the average woman has during the childbearing years of age 15 to 49 — fell behind the decreasing national rate about a decade ago. In 1971 the Quebec fertility rate was 1.89 children per family compared with a national rate of 2.19.

Despite this, the over-all proportion of French-speaking Canadians has remained relatively constant during the century at about 30 per cent of the population. However, immigration has stimulated the size of ethnic groups that are neither English nor French to a present level of about 27 per cent — approximately the size of the French-speaking group.

The study said the government should consider keeping tabs on this imbalance by re-establishing the practice of recording the ethnic origins of immigrants. This was abandoned in 1967 to avoid suggestions that immigrant selection was based on racial considerations.

would see children attending school for one hour to pick up homework assignments, in the event of a strike or lockout in Greater Victoria schools.

The seven CUPE locals involved in bargaining with regional bargaining group, meanwhile, were reported at the weekend busy with a contingency plan of their own.

Reports Monday were that the executives of those seven locals were meeting to discuss the possibility of forming a joint bargaining council of CUPE locals to bargain with the management group, a move designed to meet management's united front with a similar labor front.

Walker and other CUPE local spokesmen would neither confirm nor deny the report Monday.

Games' head will report on progress

MONTREAL (UPI) — The head of the Montreal Olympic organizing committee (COJO) will travel to Europe this week for meetings with the international olympic committee on problems facing the 1976 summer games, COJO annoned Monday.u

COJO director-general Roger Rousseau will meet Wednesday in Amsterdam with top IOC officials to discuss the games escalating costs, delays in stadium construction and a host of other difficulties facing the Montreal organizers.

A COJO spokesman said only that Rousseau would be in Amsterdam "for a day or two to outline where things stand exactly."

Construction on the $380 million Olympic stadium complex resumed last month and organizers are now confident facilities will be completed in time for the July 17, 1976 start of the games.

But escalating costs, which could produce as high as a $250 million deficit, still plague the games.

Group says B.C. broke own rules

The provincial government has broken its own labor laws at lest twice in its dealings with the 900-member British Columbia Government Professional Employees' Association, one of that group's negotiators charged Monday.

And the association has asked the provincial Labor Relations Board to declare the government guilty of unfair labor practice in relation to at least one of those incidents, Wally Ross said.

Ross said the board had been asked to make the declaration concerning the government's announcement Friday that it would cease collective bargaining with the association until new labor legislation had been introduced.

In an earlier telegram to the provincial cabinet, Ross had described Friday's action as "arbitrary and illegal," adding it had left his association's members "enraged."

Ross and his executive met in Victoria Monday, and decided to seek a meeting with the cabinet and to mount a campaign to inform their membership of the situation.

In its Friday announcement of the decision to suspend negotiations until there had been an amendment to the Public Service Labor Relations act, the government referred to premature release of some details of a proposed agreement between the association and the government.

That agreement was reached Dec. 13 and was to have been signed one month later, Ross said Monday.

In his earlier telegram, he said the leak concerning the agreement "originated, not with the association, but with a government spokesman."

He said the group actually ratified the proposed master agreement, but cannot get a first contract completed because of the government's decision.

The association represents provincial employees in professions which Ross described as "self-licencing."

It includes doctors, foresters, engineers, dentists, accountants and those in similar professions.

Your good health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter-in-law thaws her poultry in the sun. I say this is dangerous. She also thaws her beef the same way.

We also argue about eggs. She says they don't have to be refrigerated. I would appreciate your views. Mrs. F. H.

Thawing poultry or beef in the sun will soften the outside, but it might take some time for the inside to thaw. Meanwhile, bacteria can be having a field day in the thawed portion. From the freezer to the refrigerator, then to the room temperature is the better and safer route for any meat.

Eggs should be kept cool in a refrigerator, and preferably covered. Under refrigeration eggs will keep their taste and quality for several weeks. At room temperature, they can lose more quality in a day than in a week under refrigeration.

I'm also told that eggs left uncovered can pick up odd flavors from surrounding foods in or out of the refrigerator.

Bob Fortune's Inside Forecast

Your furnace. It needs all the help it can get.

Conserving energy doesn't mean having a nap. Chances are, while you're sleeping, your furnace is working overtime — possibly wasting a lot of fuel. And energy wasted can mean money wasted. That's only one reason why saving energy means a lot more to you than you may think. But it's a reason worth looking into.

No matter what you heat your home with — coal, wood, gas, oil or electricty — more than half the energy you use for all purposes in the home is used for heating. Just about anything you can do to reduce heat losses will reduce your heating costs. The more heat you save, the more money you save. Simple, but true. And of course, anything you can do to help make your heating system more efficient will help you save as well.

Furnace filters crave your attention.

When a furnace filter becomes clogged with dust and lint, your furnace has to work longer to keep the temperature where you want it. The longer it works, the more fuel it uses and the higher your heating costs. So it makes good sense to clean or replace furnace filters at least twice a year. (For safety's sake, remember to turn down your thermostat below room temperature, and switch off the power to the fan motor before checking the furnace). Paying a little attention to your furnace filter can give you a nice warm feeling during cold months.

While you're at it, unless your fan and motor bearings are permanently lubricated and sealed, make sure they are properly oiled, and your fan belt is in good condition. Sure, you just checked those last, uh, year? Or was it the year before?

Finding outlets for your energy.

Floor-length drapes can be beautiful — as long as there's no warm air outlet in the way. Covering an outlet traps the heat between the drapes and the window, which is a good way to keep your windows warm — but waste energy. Keep all warm air outlets, baseboard heaters, and cold air returns clear of drapes and furniture. They'll also do a better job if they're kept clean and free of dust and lint. In addition, if you have an unused or empty room in the house, close the door and the heating outlets and you'll direct the heat to the rooms where it's appreciated.

These are just a few ways you can help conserve energy right now. Keep in mind, saving energy doesn't take much effort, but it can mean more than you think — to your budget, to your environment, to your future.

After all, that's what's such a shame about wasting energy: you're wasting much more than just your money.

WORLD in BRIEF

Soviet champ tries gambit off chessboard

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (UPI) — Soviet chess champion Anatoly Kaprov Monday made the opening move in a gambit to win the world title in a playoff with world champion Bobby Fischer of the U.S.

Karpov notified International Chess Federation officials in Amsterdam he wants the match to take place in Milan, Italy. Fischer wants to play in Manila.

Fischer wants the rules changed. Karpov doesn't.

Edmund Edmondson, the U.S. representative to the federation, said officials of the group telephoned him Monday morning to say Karpov felt Manila, which has offered $5 million for the match, "was too hot in the summer" and that the altitude in Mexico City, also considered a possible tournament site, "was too high."

"It's all part of a plan to create a climate so unfavorable to the match that Fischer won't play and they (the Soviets) can have a paper champion," Edmondson said. "It's a normal Soviet reaction.

"I didn't think Italy was renowned for its coolness in the summer," Edmondson said. He noted the match was scheduled to take place during July and August.

"It's ridiculous," Edmondson said. "Mexico has offered one million Swiss Franes ($405,000) and Italy 1.1 million Swiss francs ($445,500). Those don't even come close to the Philippine offer."

Cartel controls unveiled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger Monday proposed a stringent energy austerity and development program for oil-consuming nations that he said could break the oil producers' pricing cartel within two years. Unveiling the strategy the United States will formally propose to fellow oil importing nations in Paris Wednesday, Kissinger said the key to success is keeping the price of oil high within individual consuming nations by taxes, import quotas or tariffs.

Air passengers stricken

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — More than 140 Japanese passengers on a chartered Japan Air Lines 747 jet were taken to hospital Monday with food poisoning from tainted ham omelettes loaded aboard in Alaska and served for breakfast over the Atlantic.

When the Tokyo-to-Paris jumbo touched down at Kastrup International Airport, scores of ambulances and buses stood waiting for the stricken passengers. There were 344 passengers aboard the plane.

Ethiopia hits guerrillas

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Ethiopian warplanes bombed Eritrean guerrilla positions near Asmara for the second consecutive day Monday in continuing air and artillery attacks that destroyed two rebel-held villages and left 2,000 persons homeless. The government sent a column of at least 50 tanks, supported by armored personnel carriers and troops to Asmara, 450 miles north of Addis Ababa, to reinforce the 15,000 soldiers already stationed there. Diplomatic reports said American-built F-5 fighters strafed and bombed guerrilla units north of Asmara.

Fight for life

MANILA (UPI) — An American passenger, lone survivors aboard a Philippine Airlines prop-jet which crashed in flames early Monday killing 32 other passengers and crew members, fought for his life in a suburban hospital today. Doctors at the Makati medical centre gave Roger Douglas Collins, 51, formerly of Winner, S.D., a "50-50 chance of survival."

Prudent

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) — A postmaster here reports that a young lady who dropped in for a provisional driving licence also asked for a form for making out a will. "We think she was just being prudent," said the postmaster.

Sentenced

BELFAST (Reuter) — Two Irish Republican Army IRA supporters, accused of involvement in "Doomsday" plans to burn down large areas of Belfast, were sentenced Monday to 15 years in prison each. Brendan Hughes, 26, and Denis Louglin, 34, were convicted of possessing arms and explosives.

New officers

EDMONTON (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand and Saskatchewan Social Services Minister Alex Taylor Monday announced establishment of a group of Indian community probation officers to work with natives in Saskatchewan.

Full film evidence cited, CIA implicated

'Several shot at J.F. Kennedy'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Robert Groden, a New York photographer and optical specialist, displayed Monday a film version of the John F. Kennedy assassination which he said proves that Lee Harvey Oswald "had nothing to do with the assassination."

"As many as four, possibly five" persons were shooting at the president, Groden said.

Kennedy was killed in a motorcade in Dallas, Texas, on Nov. 22, 1963. Oswald was arrested for the president's assassination and was himself killed in the Dallas police headquarters by a bystander, Jack Ruby.

Dick Gregory, a political activist, said the film "will change the destiny and fate of the world and I know save (Senator) Ted Kennedy's life."

Last week Gregory and Ralph Schoenman, an assistant professor of philosophy, said they had evidence which indicated the Central Intelligence Agency was involved in the Kennedy assassination.

Groder showed a film at a news conference here which he said was a blown-up version of the Abraham Zapruder film, the only film of the actual assassination. He said the film was the property of Time Inc. but refused to say how the film was obtained.

Gregory, in a statement, said the film was suppressed for 11 years because "it was limited to excerpts and still photographs that failed to show the important points of the film and its implications."

The film, enlarged and shown in slow motion, showed Kennedy being hit in the head. Groden said the film shows the force of the bullet pushing Kennedy back and to his left, indicating he was shot from the front and not from the back as was originally thought.

The film also shows two men Groden said were shooting at Kennedy. One was behind a pedestal on a grassy knoll in front of the motorcade. The other man is also in front of the motorcade, under a low tree, and his head is visible on the film. Groden said he is carrying a rifle, but it is hard to distinguish the "rifle" from the tree branches. Both are blurred in the film.

Gregory said he, Groden and Shoenman will leave for Washington Saturday to take the film to the Rockefeller commission investigating the CIA.

Gordon said at least six bullets were fired at Kennedy, not three as the Warren commission investigating the assassination had concluded.

The first shot missed the president and hit a street curb, he said, and was later removed by the FBI. He said the second shot was fired from behind and hit Kennedy in the back and the third shot hit then-governor John Connally of Texas in the shoulder.

The fourth, shot from behind, he said, hit Kennedy in the head and then the fifth hit Kennedy in the front of the head and lifted him backward.

"The shot from behind that hit him in the head and then the one from the front were fired in less than one-eighteenth of a second," Groden said.

He said a bullet fired from Oswald's supposed position in the window of the Texas Book Depository would have hit Kennedy at a different angle than any of the wounds he received.

Gregory said more evidence will be released in the next three or four weeks on the assassination.

Torment in Texas

Rain for past few days has swollen streams and rivers in Texas, causing much flooding in low areas. Skyline of Dallas appeared to be port city when Trinity River went over banks. One unfortunate car owner couldn't get vehicle out before river rose. More rain was forecast, dimming prospects of floods receding soon.

Egg rebels must pay up

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Supreme Court has ordered six central B.C. egg producers to pay B.C. Egg Marketing Board $11,248.43 in levies.

Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson allowed the claims of the board and dismissed counterclaims by the producers, all of the Prince George area, charging breach of contract by the board and interference in their business operations.

The judge, however, criticized the board for activities he described as "petty-mindedness and discrimination which is not commendable."

Detendants were Savo Kovachich of Prince George, who must pay $6,627.10; Veeken's Poultry Farm Ltd., $1,453; Chilako Farms Ltd., operated by Arnold Link, $1,453.85; Hans Egli, $374.34; William Sutherland, $532.64; and Samson's Poultry farm (1973) Ltd., $807.50.

The court action was the result of a long-standing dispute between the board, established in 1967, and central B.C. producers over the quota system set up for the control and marketing of eggs within B.C.

The producers claimed they were being discriminated against in favor of Lower Mainland egg producers. They sought a larger share of the local market and the opportunity to expand as the market grew.

The trial brought testimony by producers that Premier Barrett had intervened on their behalf.

Mr. Justice Hinkson ruled that at a meeting Oct. 27, 1972, between Barrett and central egg producers, the premier indicated he had instructed the board to implement demands set forth in a document prepared on behalf of the producers.

The judge ruled, however, there was no agreement with legal consequence entered into at that meeting, and that producers were merely given assurance that certain policies would be implemented to meet their complaints.

Hinkson said that from 1968 on, the northern producers became increasingly disenchanted with the egg marketing board and its Secretary-Manager Ed Morgan.

He noted that when quota increases did not materialize, producers sought to rally public support, and in reply, in 1971, the board placed newspaper advertisements attacking the producers.

He said a far more serious complaint was that the secretary-manager had gone to feed supply operators and indicated to them that they should not deal with the defendants.

Your leisure years made easier.

First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan

First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan helps you plan for your leisure years.

Retirement can be the time of your life. But you have to plan for it now, while your earning power—and probably your expenses—are high. You can start by reading about First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan, and how it can make your leisure years, as well as your saving years, much, much easier.

By investing in First Canadian Retirement Savings Plan any time during and up to 60 days after a taxation year, you may reduce your taxable income by the amount of your investment, up to the lesser of: 20% of your earned income, $4000 if you have no pension plan, $2500 if you are a non-contributing member of a pension plan, or $2500 less the amount of your contributions to a company pension plan. Your tax reduction is not affected by payment into the Canada or Quebec Pension Plans. Income tax will have to be paid on your savings eventually—either when used as retirement income or if you withdraw your savings prior to retirement—but probably at a lower rate than during your peak earning years.

Choose from two options.

At present there are two options available. Both are eligible for registration with the tax authorities so that you can reduce your annual income tax.

Option I-First Canadian Mortgage Fund.

In today's financial market, investment in a quality mortgage fund is considered a good bet to produce a relatively secure high yield over the long term. At the same time, investors may realize an increase in value of their units in this Fund depending on prevailing mortgage interest rates. There is no load on the purchase or redemption of these units.

Option II-Firstbank Special Retirement Account. Your deposits in this special bank account will earn interest at the Bank's Five-Year-Term Deposit Receipt rate. This rate of interest will be fixed every January 1st and July 1st at the rate prevailing that day—and remain in effect for six months.

Interest is calculated and payable on your minimum monthly balance and credited semi-annually.

Over the long term, the yield will vary but always be tied to the upper end of the scale of bank interest rates.

Option I and Option II. If you wish, you may buy into both First Canadian Mortgage Fund and Firstbank Special Retirement Account. In fact, over the long term and as economic conditions fluctuate, one option may become more profitable and appropriate than the other. You may switch your savings contributions from one option to another without penalty or charge.

The cost of this plan is minimal.

Unlike many other registered retirement savings plans, there is no charge for opening or closing a plan.

There is an annual Trustee fee of 1/5 of 1% of your investment—maximum $25 per account, to cover registration and the expense of the Trustee of the plan. The amount will be deducted from your share of the income of the plan and will be indicated on your statement. The standard management fees will also be applicable.

You start by investing as little as $200.

The minimum initial contribution into First Canadian Mortgage Fund and Firstbank Special Retirement Account is $200. (If you invest in both, your first contribution is $400—$200 into each option). Contributions may be made at any time. However, the most effective method of participation is on a regular basis.

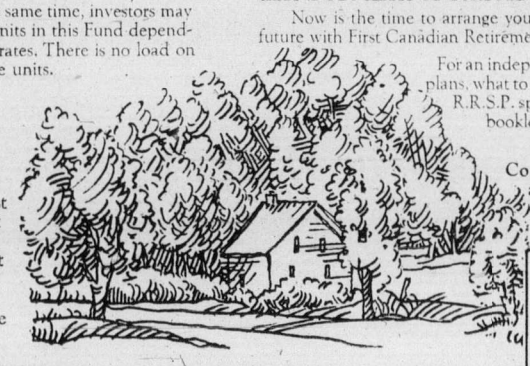

Ask your bank manager to help you work out a regular payment schedule and automatically transfer funds from your bank account to your R.R.S.P., as per your instructions.

Now is the time to arrange your saving program for the future with First Canadian Retirement Savings Plans.

For an independent analysis of types of plans, what to look for, costs, etc., ask for R.R.S.P. specialist, R. W. Wakefield's booklet, "Registered Retirement Savings Plans".

An 'out' for Mr. Strachan

OFF TO OTTAWA this week is Robert Strachan with two main objectives. The B.C. cabinet member is seeing his federal counterparts, Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier and Transport Minister Jean Marchand, on matters of interest to British Columbians, one perhaps more so than the other.

With Mr. Pelletier it's the setting aside of television's Channel 10 as a provincial educational medium, and with Mr. Marchand it's the old question of financial aid for the people's ferry system.

For Vancouver Island residents in particular Mr. Strachan's meeting with Jean Marchand holds more importance than the get-together with Mr. Pelletier. In view of what Mr. Strachan has hinted in the past, federal aid for the ferries is vital, although extension of educational facilities along the lines proposed would be welcome as well, except for the fear that it might be used as an agency for government propaganda.

But on the ferry system which, despite the heavy traffic it handles is deficit-ridden too, there is the threat of increased fares this year. It was made by Mr. Strachan last October when he was asked about an estimated $20 million loss on 1974 operations. He said he didn't know but, "We have been subsidizing the system for years" and there hadn't been an increase in fares, except in commercial rates, since the start of the service in 1960.

Mr. Strachan has the 1974-75 official record of federal aid to ferry systems in Eastern Canada to try and persuade Ottawa into meeting a responsibility it has in the west but which it has consistently refused to recognize. It was given just the other day in response to a question asked in the House of Commons by Donald Munro, the Esquimalt-Saanich MP.

With Ottawa paying $96.84 million to ferry operations in Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, it just isn't right that the Vancouver Island-mainland sea-section of the Trans-Canada Highway is ruled out for a sharing of costs.

It should be noted that some of the millions is going to privately-owned ferry systems, although the wrongness would not be made any less if only public operations were being assisted.

The federal government inconsistency-argument has been used many times in the past without avail, which suggests the Strachan trip is a waste of time.

His chances of success in seeking ferry aid are as dim as the Channel 10 reservation prospects unless there has been a quick change in Ottawa attitude. The television request got a negative reaction as soon as it was made.

Mr. Strachan had to make the ferry aid gesture, if for no other reason than having the "out" when he announces increases in fares. It is a good one, though.

Transit-loss sharing

GREATER VANCOUVER regional municipal officials have been promised a full discussion of public transportation with Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer within two weeks, according to a Vancouver newspaper report. This promise came as a result of a closed meeting last Friday attended by the minister, the chairman of the Greater Vancouver Regional District, the chairman of the district's transportation committee and a Vancouver alderman, with the minister quoted as saying, "We're in a new era of co-operation."

Nevertheless the Greater Vancouver local representatives went into the meeting to demand not only regular meetings of municipal and provincial politicians on transit planning but some word on if, how and when the deficits of the transit system, or a part thereof, would be charged to the municipal governments. They came out with neither aim met, only a "new rapport" and an assurance that the minister would meet the regional politicians when policy matters arose.

Left in doubt, then, is just how the tranist deficits are to be shared between the provincial government — or B.C. Hydro as its agent — and the municipalities and unorganized areas involved. The government has said firmly enough on more than one occasion that the local administrations served by the transportation systems will have to pay up to the equivalent of two mills on their assessment bases for school taxation — $2 on each $1,000 of taxable assessment on property. But Mr. Lorimer has left some latitude for application of this taxation — if some formula can be devised — especially to property-owners gaining the most benefit from public transit.

Judging from the known results of Friday's meeting, however, this question has not yet been settled to the satisfaction of the Greater Vancouver Regional District politicians, who still think a tax of about two cents a gallon on gasoline and diesel fuel sold to distributors in the area would be preferable. The preference is understandable: the province would collect this tax, while the local elected representatives would reap the blame for higher property taxation.

The motor-vehicle fuel surtax would have this to commend it, that it might act as one more incentive to leave the car at home and take the bus, thus making the transportation system less of a money-loser and easing traffic problems to everyone's advantage. And the government is vulnerable on its property-tax demand. The New Democrats said in 1972 that if they were to form a government, they would remove taxes from property for services to people among which they listed public transit. Admittedly, they are failing to reach their goal.

But if the subject is still open to discussion, and the minister is willing to meet Greater Vancouver representatives on it, surely spokesmen for the Capital Regional District should take part in any debate. The final decision, whenever it comes, will have to apply to both communities.

Weary of marking time

Israel's Arabs have split loyalties

By ERIC SILVER from Nazareth

"Twenty-six years," an Arab cafe-owner sighed, "is a long time to wait for a solution." The 450,000 Israeli Arabs, the ultimate schizophrenics of the Middle East, are weary of marking time, yet apprehensive of the Palestinian challenge.

"After all these years," Atallah Mansour, an Arab reporter for a Hebrew newspaper explained, "we have a certain identity, certain vested interests here. But we are reminded every minute that we are not Israelis, we are Arabs.

"Israel decided that there should be a kind of tribal division. An old anachronism was imposed on the machinery of a modern state. Every institution — the labor exchange, the health centre, the trade unions — has its Arab department."

Although the Arabs have equal rights as citizens, they feel discriminated against. The schools in the Arab town of Nazareth are shabby and neglected. Hardly any were built for the purpose. Their pupils find it harder than their Jewish contemporaries to get a place at an Israeli university. Ex-soldiers have first claim, and Arab school-leavers are not conscripted.

It helps to have gone to certain schools — Rehavia in Jerusalem, the Reali in Haifa. Arabs do not go to those schools. If you want to study medicine, it is useful to have a doctor for a father. There are few Arab doctors.

None the less, there are about 1,500 Arabs studying in Israeli universities. But once there they meet a different kind of barrier. Where will they live? The problem is not so bad in Jerusalem and Haifa, where they can lodge in local Arab communities. But in the Jewish city of Tel Aviv, which has two universities, it is almost insoluble.

The prime minister's adviser on Arab affairs, Shmuel Toledano, recently persuaded one of them, the religious university of Bar-Ilan, to take 10 Arab students. The Jewish students demonstrated against giving them room on the campus. They argued that the Arab students would be a security risk. They would know when reservists received their call-up papers, they would hear student soldiers discussing military secrets.

Arab businessmen here complained last month that the government had let their economy stagnate. No factories of any size had been brought to Nazareth. The men had to go out and work in Jewish enterprises. The contrast is pointed up by the presence of a Jewish development town — Upper Nazareth — on the ridge above the Arab town.

The discrimination is less a matter of policy than of negligence. In a society of many pressures it is easier to ignore the demands of Nazareth than those of a new immigrant town. Resources are scarce, there are considerations of security. All would be different comes the invariable answer, if Israel were not in a condition of perpetual warfare with its Arab neighbors.

Here in the home town of Jesus, patience is running out. An Arab wholesaler, a Nazarene born and bred, told me he was emigrating to the United States. He saw no prospects of a change. Meanwhile his money was losing its value, his children could not get into university to study the subjects they wanted. If they went to college abroad — to the Soviet bloc, as an increasing number are doing, or to the West — they would either come back troublemakers or be lost to their parents. "I want to keep my family together," the wholesaler said. "They are my future."

Yet for most Israeli Arabs emigration is no solution. They insist that they belong here in Galilee, and they recognize that Galilee is going to stay part of Israel. The recent success of the Palestine Liberation Organization, in the Arab world and in the United Nations, has given another twist to their dilemma.

It has tended to separate the generations. The instinctive response of the middle-class middle-aged was to protest their loyalty to Israel and to cultivate their gardens. Over and over again they bring the question back to local issues: the inadequacy of the municipal leadership, the deafness of central government.

But they buy the East Jerusalem Arab newspapers, they listen to Arab radio stations, they read Egyptian books. They want to know what is happening in the Arab world beyond Israel's borders, but they prefer not to talk about it.

"If Arafat gets his Palestinian state on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip," the cafe owner finally replied, "it won't do anything for us. We are in the middle of Israel." He foresaw a threat whenever Nazarenes demanded anything from the Israeli government. "They will be able to come to us and say 'If you don't like it you can go. You have your own state now."

The younger Arabs are less inhibited than their elders, but just as troubled. "I see myself first of all as an Arab, then as an Israeli Arab," a woman student explained in flawless Hebrew. "I also see myself as a Palestinian, now more so than ever."

Would a Palestinian state help? "I feel a Palestinian and I want to stay here. This is my home. Most Israeli Arabs know how Palestinian they are and how Israeli they are. If they say anything to the contrary it's a matter of expediency. If someone says he is a Palestinian he knows he'll get it on the head."

The PLO, she added, did represent the Palestinian people. King Hussein had no right to speak for them. But did the PLO represent the Israeli Arabs too? "For the time being, no."

"I would cease to be an Israeli Arab living in a state which is at war with my people." Would he go and live there? "No, I shall never leave my place, unless they send a bulldozer and shift me."

U.S. lead followed

By LUBOR J. ZINK from Ottawa

When thousands of auto workers started losing jobs in the United States because automobile sales nosedived last year, the car industry in Canada seemed unaffected by the squeeze south of the border.

As recently as last December, on the eve of Prime Minister Trudeau's meeting with President Ford, the Wall Street Journal wrote wistfully: "While Washington is immersed in doom and gloom over the shape of our economy, Ottawa's only problem is how to minimize the impact of U.S. stagflation on the Canadian scene."

Noting that our rate of employment declined slightly in November, the article went on to say: "There have been layoffs in the Canadian auto plants, but only those that manufacture cars for sale in the United States. Those that make cars for Canadians are going full throttle. Consumer confidence is high, real personal incomes are rising, and although the inflation rate is almost as high as ours, there is real economic growth on top of it."

It was a rosy exaggeration of our usual time lag behind every up and down in the American economy. The Wall Street Journal which is usually well informed, particularly on business matters, should have known better than to misrepresent our conditions (even to the point of seeing real growth where none has occurred for months) in order to make its lament of domestic troubles sound more vindictive.

What effect, if any, the distortion may have had in the U.S. is hard to tell, but in Canada it helped to stretch government-fostered illusions about the health and strength of our economy. (I received several copies of the Wall Street Journal article from readers who saw it as refutation of my grim economic analyses and forecast).

With recent massive layoffs in the Canadian auto plants the pleasant self-delusion of some miraculous escape from the consequences of unchecked inflation collapsed on its Wall Street Journal and similar make believe props.

This time even the most determined evaders of unpleasant reality find it hard to maintain their business as usual complacency, because car manufacturing is the lynchpin of the whole North American economy. There is no use in pretending that Canada is less vulnerable to a slump in automobile sales than the U.S.

With our whole way of life (actually our whole civilization) not only profoundly influenced by the car; but literally shaped around it, the layoff of one-third of the workers directly engaged in the manufacture of motor vehicles is bound to have a far greater impact on the economy than the number of idled men (42,000 right now) would seem to indicate. For unless they can return soon to producing cars more than 70 per cent of which have to be sold in the United States, hundreds of thousands of jobs in the supporting industries, particularly rubber, textiles, plastic and steel will be in jeopardy.

Since production of automobiles for stock-piling at public expense is obviously out of the question, the key problem is how to increase the sale of new cars in a virtually saturated market.

The Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, Dennis McDermott, maintains that the root cause of the difficulty is inadequate purchasing power. He therefore calls for more money to be put into the hands of low and middle income consumers. To accomplish that he demands additional tax cuts and higher unemployment insurance benefits in addition to wage and salary increases.

Adoption of his remedy would inevitably increase the inflation pressures and uncertainties which caused the sharp drop in car buying in the first place.

A far better approach, it seems to me, would be lowering of car prices considerably below the temporary rebate scheme level.

The relative success of the manufacturers' cash rebate inducements indicates that car sales dropped not because people who would normally buy have no money, but because they consider the product overpriced. With inflation stealing people's savings, even those whose earnings keep pace with the cost of living develop price resistance and tend to limit their purchases.

★ ★ ★

Price lowering on major items such as cars would, of course require production cost decreases. Cutting costs is hardly feasible without stabilization of wages and salaries: In other words, without a determined, disciplined and sacrificial joint attack on inflation by labor and management under the direction of a selfless, example-setting public authority. Since no such action is anywhere in sight and its advocacy is deemed politically suicidal, a quick catch-up and then jump ahead of the United States in compounding slumpflation is a virtual certainty.

Retrospect is tricky

Those memories of the Depression

By RON POULTON from Toronto

The year's still young but if you just got back from sunnier climes you might have noticed the gloom is thickening. People with low expectations are already begging for something their kind invariably gets: Low results.

Ottawa is in siege. Taxpayers are lining up to kick every MP who's had the audacity to ask for a raise. Economists are plodding around prophesying fresh disasters.

All the political news has such a studious, gray quality to it that any sane observer should be hollering for one small breath of scandal to lighten the load. Why, after all, should the states get all the breaks? Come back, Gerda, wherever you are.

All this heavy dedication has blighted the nation's soul. Optimists (there must be a couple) keep running into people who claim that what the country needs is another depression. Masochism is rife.

This theory is being pushed by survivors of the Great Depression. By people who should know better, which, in itself, is not surprising. It is axiomatic of human idiocy that people who should know better, never do.

They started surfacing when all the predictions for 1975 were painting a picture of a world heading hellbent for the breadlines. Every time the news gets worse, they become more cheerful.

They keep telling their kids that if the worst comes to the worst, it'll do them all a lot of good. You'll find the line in the Puritan ethic, right where it says suffering is good for the soul. It's commonly heard where people can afford to print daisies on their toilet paper and downright uncommon in countries where suffering is real.

These advocates of disaster don't realize though, that retrospect is tricky stuff to handle. It takes practice; the kind of practice that goes on all the time down at the Legion Hall.

The old troopers sit around, subconsciously wishing for another war; and the older they get, the more they forget the years when they were up to their withers in boredom, terror and mud. In retrospect, it was all fun and knees up, Mother Brown.

That kind of mental trickery is part of the curative process, which is why it works better for front-line troopers than it does for 20-mile snipers. They're stuck with nothing but memories of VD lectures and eternal kitchen details.

Meanwhile, back at the Great Depression—the wonder is not that survivors are recommending it as a better alternative to the recession we've got. The wonder is that some people who never knew the Hungry Thirties are falling for the propaganda too.

They've been listening to forgetful parents and that's a practice which, as all God's children know, can often lead to a mess of trouble.

So, if you weren't around, pay attention. Sleeping under a bridge can get you arthritis. Hopping on and off freights can get you short in a leg. Eating hand-outs at some stranger's door a thousand miles from home can make you feel like nothing but a hound dog.

Given that set of circumstances, the sun might be out but it doesn't shine. In the Thirties, there was a peculiar chill in the spring, no lilt to the summer, the winter was awful and the seasons multiplied.

The people were all in the same boat? You heard your daddy say that they were? Then the boat tipped and they were companionable as all get-out while they were going down.

That helped, he said? But he forgot to add that if you stay under long enough, it can permanently impair the brain.

I heard a young sociologist yammering about all this on the radio recently. She sounded sorry she'd missed it. The music had a special quality and she'd heard that people counted their blessings and the crime rate was low.

It's all true, except that her parents forgot to tell her they counted their blessings because it didn't take long and they had nothing else to do. Or that the crime rate was down because there was nothing to steal.

Woman could become Britain's next premier

By NORA BELOFF, from London

It would have seemed unthinkable, a decade ago, that the grand old Tory Party, founded in the 17th century, standing for tradition and continuity, and boasting among its heroes Benjamin Disraeli and Winston Churchill, should now be seriously considering selecting a woman for its leader.

MARGARET THATCHER . . . makes her bid today.

Yet the very feminine and elegant 49-year-old Mrs. Margaret Thatcher is now being considered as a very serious candidate in the party's leadership contest, the first ballot in which is being held today.

It takes a lot of nerve to challenge a former prime minister who has been leader of the Conservative Party for nearly 10 years, and it was one of Tory leader Edward Heath's chief supporters who described Mrs. Thatcher as "the only man among Ted's opponents."

It is several weeks since Mrs. Thatcher made it known she would be willing to run, but only now top Tories are coming to admit that, strange as it may seem, she might actually win. In that case, unless there are unexpected disruptions, she would almost certainly become Britain's first woman prime minister when the electoral pendulum swings back to the Tories, and the first woman to lead the government of a major world power in modern times.

It was under Heath's leadership that Mrs. Thatcher made her political career, and most of Heath's colleagues have felt that, so long as he wants to go on serving, as he certainly does, it would be disloyal and improper for them to try to oust him.

The new rules for the selection of a party leader provide that if there is no decisive vote in today's first round other candidates may come forward for the second ballot, Feb. 11, which means that some powerful Tories, including the party chairman, William Whitelaw, might feel free to enter the lists.

'A coward's charter'

The first plus for Mrs. Thatcher is that many MPs describe this new system as "a cowards' charter" and feel more respect for those who are ready, as she is, to stand up and be counted in the first ballot. It would be unfair to suggest that Mrs. Thatcher, an excellent debater and former tax lawyer, is less loyal than her colleagues. As she sees it, her case for coming forward against Heath is rather that she is identified with a different and more militant strand of Toryism.

She was not involved in the last Conservative government's economic and financial policies, and one of her reasons for running is that, while Heath feels he must defend the last government's financial record, Mrs. Thatcher is free to join up with many Tories who believe that part of the responsibility for the present inflation rests with former chancellor, Anthony Barber.

No one will ever know whether Barber's policy of sustaining full employment by deliberately boosting public expenditure and reducing taxes might have been a success if it had not happened to coincide with a catastrophic rise in world commodity prices and the quintupling of the price of oil.

But Mrs. Thatcher is among the many Tories who believe that the risk should never have been taken and that true Toryism should mean less public expenditure, less state control, lower taxes and "sound money."

Mrs. Thatcher herself is only the third most prominent personality among right-wing exponents of "sound money." The first, and by far the most popular, is Enoch Powell, whose economic views are very similar to Mrs. Thatcher's.

But he has fallen out with the party and with her over his anti-Europe and anti-immigration policies, and he has ruled himself out of the leadership contest by advising the public to vote Labor in the last two elections.

Ruled himself out

The next most prominent of the group is the party's superintellectual, Fellow of All Souls, Sir Keith Joseph. Mrs. Thatcher only decided to run after he and his wife had assured her that, for family and personal reasons, he would in no circumstances be a candidate.

But although politically speaking, Edward Heath and Margaret Thatcher represent different sections of the party, they share one characteristic which distinguishes them from old-style Tories: both came from modest non-political families and forced their way forward through brain and ambition.

Mrs. Thatcher's father ran a family grocery shop in the small Lincolnshire town of Grantham, and she remembers as a girl helping behind the counter.

Her mother was a dressmaker, and Mrs. Thatcher has retained an interest in clothes and is fashionably, though discreetly dressed.

She won an Oxford scholarship from her grammar school, and is one of those very rare specimens in the British education system who managed to span what Lord Snow calls "the two cultures" science and the humanities, in her case first chemistry then law.

Accepting motherhood as her first responsibility, she waited till her twins were five — that is, of school-age — before dedicating herself to politics.

Elected to parliament in 1959, she rose fast and furiously, and when the Tories were returned to power in 1970 she was appointed privy councillor and secretary of state for education.

Having battled her way up, Mrs. Thatcher passionately believes in a meritocracy, where people should be encouraged to own their own homes, finance their children's education, and rely as little as possible on the welfare state.

'From igloo to glacier'

Mrs. Thatcher gives an outward impression of coldness and the most uncharitable of British political commentators, Bernard Levin, has told the Tories that switching from the notoriously frigid Heath to Mrs. Thatcher would be "jumping out of the igloo into the glacier".

And her generally unruffled appearance, fresh complexion, pink cheeks and meticulously waved and tinted blond hair, give the impression of a protected middle-class lady, far removed from the hardships of working class life: a suburban wife whose genuine interest and expertise in Dresden china and old porcelain might be the sum total of her outside interests.

In fact she is a woman of quite gargantuan energy. She has now spent over 15 years combining the unremitting strains of the front bench in parliament with running her town and country households with no living-in help.

Yet she is freely available to fellow politicians or journalists to discuss the big political issues while at the same time never grudging the work required to master the complicated briefs for the specialist job with which her party entrusted her.

In today's leadership contest, Mrs. Thatcher is still a possible rather than a probable winner. Though the public is far less anti-feminist than it was, most Tories agree that being a woman is a handicap — particularly among their women — dominated local associations, who often prefer to campaign for men.

Further, she has never held any of the great offices of state: home or foreign secretary, or chancellor and, unlike other possible contenders, she is still on the right side of 50.

On the other hand if she does reasonably well this time, she is young enough to be in a position to win the next time round.

Deadline pressure exists

By JACK R. PAYTON, from Tel Aviv

Israel hopes to avoid another Middle East war and ensure a measure of stability in the region by negotiating a second-stage military disengagement accord with Egypt in the Sinai Desert.

By giving Egypt some of its Sinai territory back and holding open the possibility that more will be returned in future negotiations Israeli leaders hope to eliminate the threat of imminent war on the country's southern flank. By this method they would reduce the threat from Syria, which Israel believes does not want to take on the Israeli army alone.

Negotiations on a new Israeli-Egyptian accord in Sinai are to begin in earnest this month when U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger begins his latest diplomatic shuttle between Cairo and Jerusalem. Israeli sources in Washington have said they expect the Kissinger mission to be exploratory. They said he probably will return to the Middle East in March, possibly to complete the negotiations.

★ ★ ★

Though Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin says Israel is not acting under deadline pressure to achieve a new agreement with Egypt a natural deadline is present. The mandate allowing United Nations troops to police the cease-fire on the Sinai front expires April 24. The mandate on the Golan Heights, which Israel captured from Syria in 1967, expires May 30.

Kissinger negotiated the mandates last year as part of the first troop disengagement accords following the 1973 Middle East war.

By spring, the rains and snows that prevent mass movement of troops and armor in the mountainous and rock-studded Golan Heights will have disappeared and conditions for warfare, including aerial combat, will be ideal.

In addition to the deadlines imposed by the UN mandates, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has put up a deadline of his own. Sadat has said that if Israel does not withdraw militarily from the Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian fronts within three months, he will call for an immediate resumption of the Geneva Middle East conference and "blow up" the peace negotiations.

In rejecting Sadat's deadline, Rabin said Israel was not afraid of the Geneva conference and its army was prepared for war. This assessment is echoed by western defence analysts.

The analysts say the Agabs lost four times as many aircraft and twice as much armor as Israel did in the 1973 war. Even with the massive resupply of sophisticated Soviet arms to Syria since the war, they say, Israel still enjoys an edge in weapons because of the U.S. arms resupply effort.

In addition, the analysts say that because the Soviet arms shipments to the region have largely bypassed Egypt, Cairo's army is neither prepared nor anxious to mount a fullscale war effort soon.

Taking these factors into consideration, former defence minister Moshe Dayan says he does not think allout war is probable in the first half of this year. "The Egyptians don't want war and the Syrians aren't ready for it, not in the next three months anyway," Dayan said. "There's a danger of course, but I don't think full-scale war is imminent."

Defence analysts say that even though Sadat is moving to secure new sources of arms, especially from France, the Egyptian army could not hope to confront Israel with any success unless it is bolstered by massive shipments of the latest Soviet weapons. Despite these considerations, Israeli leaders concede that the threat of war is still serious, especially on the Syrian front.

Israel mobilized part of its army reserve and put its Golan Heights defenders on full war alert last November when the first six-month mandate for UN troops to patrol the region was about to expire. At the time, Rabin said the move was taken because of uncertainty over the intentions of the Damascus government.

The war scare passed three days later when Damascus renewed the UN mandate for another six months. But Damascus warned it would not renew the mandate again in May unless there is a further Israeli withdrawal from the Golan Heights. Israeli leaders have said there is no room for further withdrawal in the heights and there is little chance for another disengagement agreement with Syria.

The answer to whether there will be another Middle East war this year should be clear by May 30, when the UN mandate in the Golan Heights expires.

In your opinion...

Strike 'exercise in futility'

With reference to the present municipal strike, I wish to express my opinion as a taxpayer. To me, it seems an exercise in futility — neither side is going to really win.

Obviously, this is a fight for power.

The union determined, not only to disrupt service to the public, but in addition, to endanger their lives by the decision to keep Johnson Street bridge out of service at set times, no repairs to traffic lights and no sanding if we have snow. In addition, no burials. Human feelings?

On the other hand we have Mayor Pollen boasting he will set up a clock to advise us how much the city will save in non-payment of salaries due to the strike of one municipal union. Just how juvenile can one get?

Is he prepared to deduct the equivalent amount of salaries to himself, council and department heads for the four-hour service to the public? The offer of garbage bags to citizens appears to be a pretty feeble effort to solve the problem.

So Mayor Pollen and union members, let's get with it and make a determined effort to settle your differences and stop acting like children. Both parties should appreciate it is the taxpayer who pays your wages.

We, I believe, are reaching the point where we feel both sides are at fault and we do not appreciate your half-hearted efforts or our increased taxes.

'Be honest and fair'

It is not easy to resist the pressures of fellow employees and members of one's union, and I think Jack Hilliard at the City Hall had real courage when he aired views re wage and salary settlements now under way in the city.

I have long held, and Mr. Hilliard expressed my belief, that strikes are a clear indication of incompetence and lack of common sense in many (not all) cases. Why can't negotiators on both sides of the table be honest and fair?

If accurate figures could be produced, why not agree that the actual cost of living increase be paid, plus a little for an actual improvement in the standard of living which all are entitled to in a prosperous era.

If production is maintained or increased all should share in the increased production. If honest men, not connected with the negotiations, could honestly measure the increased cost of living and also of production and honestly report to the bargaining table, surely this is a much better method than costly strikes which often hurt those most of who have no real say in the negotiations.

It is time someone spoke up for reason and common sense and I take off my hat to Jack Hilliard for doing so.

Quebec Bill 22 'insulting'

I wish to congratulate Mr. Tom Graham on his reasonable letters to the press of January 16 and 28, re the "language barrier," and to those others who express the same sentiment.

The Quebec Bill 22 is not only an insult to the English speaking minority in Quebec, but to the whole English-speaking majority in this country.

One wonders if it is legal under the BNA Act for Premier Bourassa to advocate "A second French state" in Canada. Also, on what authority does he deny to immigrants the right to have their children taught in the language of their choice?

I am told by relatives in Quebec that some French-Canadians, too, prefer to have education provided in English schools, recognizing the fact that this is a more universal language.

A book entitled, Wanted, a Single Canada, by the Hon. J. T. Thorson, is one that every thinking Canadian should read and puts the whole language question on proper perspective.

One hears on TV and radio addresses by European and other foreign diplomats, etc. far more fluent and intelligent English than is spoken by some of our cabinet ministers.

In Mrs. Greenwood's letter of January 28 she claims that "the cost of bilingualism programs is the price of past prejudice," as though the fault lay entirely with lack of proper teaching of French — and she refers to "learning another language, and to begin with the other half of their own country—surely a wild exaggeration.

Many people may not be aware that as late as 1948 when I left my native Province of Quebec, English was not taught in French parish schools. While some of us did not become bilingual, at least this "second language" was taught in English schools.

Surely our Quebec-oriented government at the federal level has shown a great lack of fair treatment to civil servants on the language issue — and the appalling waste of money affects all Canadians.

'Man is a predator'

Archer amused by opposition

I have watched and read with amusement and in some cases actual sympathy at the letters re bow hunting in Saanich. Sympathy for those who do not understand game management and the problems involved.

All of the animal kingdom that we are familiar with in B.C. live in the predator and prey category. Birds of prey kill other birds and animals, not in any way are they clean kills or without suffering. Our prey animals kill other animals, even our domestic cats kill small birds, torture them to death as they play. We accept this, many of us harbor cats.

Man is a predator, some of us more sophisticated than others, we keep our prey confined in pens, cages or fences. When we want to kill them we just do it ourselves or hire someone who is in the business. Be it poultry, cattle, sheep or swine. Therefore very few of us (only vegetarians) do not condone killing.

Now this Saanich bow season has drawn a lot of criticism of the bow hunter. Remember it was the Fish and Wildlife, in their wisdom, in consultation with the municipalities that made the decision for bow hunting. So do not blame the bow hunter who has been given the opportunity to assist in this game management exercise.

Let me ask the critics one simple question: If you were to be born again, and given the choice of being a lamb or a deer, which would you choose? Weep not for the deer. Thank you. Our ancesters as far back as history goes were successful bowhunters, or we would not be here today.

Currency problem

U.S. goes to rescue

NEW YORK (Reuter) — In an unprecedented statement Monday, the chairman of the United States Federal Reserve Board, Arthur Burns, disclosed that the U.S. central bank is buying dollars to support their value in currency markets.

This support action — buying dollars and selling other currencies — is designed to halt the dollar's recent decline in value on world markets. In the past few weeks, the dollar has fallen to record or near-record lows against several other major currencies.

International money markets have been rife with rumors during the past few days that the federal Reserve has been buying unwanted dollars in an effort to stop the erosion of the currency's value against the West German deutschemark and other European currencies.

The reserve normally does not comment on its current activity in the market, waiting 90 days after any policy decisions have been made before announcing them.

By announcing that the Federal reserve is supporting the dollar, and will continue to do so, Burns has given notice that the U.S. considers its currency too cheap in relation to others, and will act to maintain, and increase, its value.

He also showed in his statement that the reserve is acting with other central banks to support the dollar, the first official indication that an international agreement concluded in May, 1974, at Basle, Switzerland, has been implimented.

Under the pact, the U.S. Federal Reserve and its counterparts in West Germany and Switzerland agreed to act to support the dollar if it sank too low in value, and threatened the stability of the international financial mechanism.

This agreement was reaffirmed by the three central banks at a meeting of the Bank of International Settlements — in October, 1974.

At the same time, in an effort to stimulate economic recovery, the Federal Reserve has eased its monetary policy, causing a sharp fall in domestic interest rates over the past few months, while other international interest rates have remained firm. Foreign holders of dollars have therefore been selling them against other currencies to catch the higher return.

U.S. dollar recovers

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The U.S. dollar recovered from low opening quotations Monday to close higher than Friday on most European currency markets following what dealers described as interventions by the U.S. Treasury department and European central banks.

The U.S. currency took dives at opening time amid heavy selling that followed President Ford's announcement of a peacetime record budget deficit of $52 billion.

Syncrude

Agreement near?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald indicated Monday agreement may be near on a plan to save the Syncrude oil sands project.

After 12 hours of talks with government and oil company executives, the minister said "some important questions remain to be solved but the negotiations will continue by telephone this morning. If final agreement is reached, it will be outlined this afternoon in the Commons and in the Ontario and Alberta legislature."

"I can't be very definitive at this point," Macdonald said, "but the outcome of the talks has been very encouraging, although there are a number of important decisions to be finalized."

The federal minister and Premiers William Davis of Ontario and Peter Lougheed of Alberta took part in the day-long talks with Syncrude's owners—Imperial Oil Ltd., Gulf Canada Ltd., and Canada-Cities Service Ltd.

The consortium said it needs additional financing of $1 billion to keep the project going.

Macdonald spoke on behalf of all those who took part in the talks. The others declined comment as they left the meeting.

Earlier in the day, Shell Canada Ltd., the only other oil company interested in Syncrude, said it had no intention of investing in the $2-billion project.

Federal government officials had expected some investment from Shell.

Following a 3½-hour morning session with government officials, Shell president C. W. Daniel said his company decided not to join the consortium because of "terms and conditions" offered and the uncertainty over future world oil prices.

He declined to elaborate, but sources within the meeting said Shell had tried unsuccessfully to get agreement on a floor price for Syncrude oil.

Ottawa has promised Syncrude world prices for its oil, but refused to set a floor price in case prices drop from present high levels.

Housing minister sees lower land price tags

WINNIPEG (CP) — Federal Urban Affairs Minister Barnett Danson said Monday he expects housing prices soon will be related more closely to costs of production and land prices will fall.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, Danson predicted 1975 will be a good year for the prudent buyer of housing.

Federal assistance to moderate and low-income buyers had reduced mortgage rates and stabilized prices, and there was little advantage to postponing the purchase of a new home.

"We have experienced an extraordinary housing market during the last two years, and I think there is no doubt that increases in prices did not directly reflect the cost of housing production.

"Land prices, particularly, rose at a rate that could not be justified in terms of costs. I am confident those days are over. I am looking to see land prices rolled back."

Danson said he could not accept the view of some private forecasters that housing starts in Canada, which totalled 268,529 in 1973 and 222,123 in 1974, could drop as low as 172,000 this year.

The federal ministry has set a goal of 210,080 housing starts for 1975 and to achieve this, the industry will have to cope with current weak demand from home-builders and rental entrepreneurs. "This weakness is the result not only of high prices and interest rates, but of the industry's anxiety about rent controls and a general feeling of uncertainty about the prospects of the economy as a whole."

In the last few weeks, however, inflationary forces had moderated as interest rates declined, and it was realistic to expect a real growth rate of 3 per cent for Canada in 1975.

Later, at a news conference, Danson said the federal target for 1975 housing starts is a modest one. A desirable ceiling probably would be about 250,000, because anything above that level would overheat the economy.

He said the federal government is committed to instituting a national warranty program for home buyers. The program likely would be administered by a board on which industry would have something less than 49 per cent of the representation.

The balance of the board would be representatives of government and consumer groups. Danson said he did not want to give the impression that such a warranty scheme can be implemented quickly on a national scale.

Westcoast has control

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Westcoast Transmission Ltd. Monday announced it was successful in a $1.8 million bid to take over control of Westcoast Petroleum Ltd.

Westcoast Transmission, a pipeline operator, made an offer to buy 400,000 of the outstanding common shares of Westcoast Petroleum, an exploration company, through the Vancouver, Montreal and Toronto stock exchanges last month.

Response to the $4.50 a share offer was good, the company said, and purchase of the new shares brought its ownership of Westcoast Petroleum to "just over 50 per cent of the common shares."

"There were in excess of 500,000 common shares tendered by Westcoast Petroleum shareholders and we have agreed to purchase 80 per cent, or 400,675 shares," said Kelly Gibson, chairman of Westcoast Transmission.

He said stock exchanges will allocate 80 per cent of the number of shares tendered by any shareholder against the shares purchased by Westcoast Transmission.

It hurts to sit on bench former player tells judge

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — John Mackey, a former professional football player, told a federal court judge Monday that it hurt his pride to sit on the bench.

"Salary wasn't the most important thing," Mackey testified at the outset of a lawsuit aimed at giving the players more freedom in signing with the team of their choice. "It was pride. They couldn't pay me enough for sitting on the bench."

Sixteen current and former National Football League players are challenging the league's Rozelle Rule. The case, brought as an anti-trust action against the league and its 26 teams, is being heard without a jury by Judge Earl Larson of the United States district court.

The Rozelle Rule covers the cases in which a player declines to sign a contract and plays out his option year, thus becoming a free agent and eligible to negotiate with other teams. But in the event the two clubs don't agree on terms, commissioner Pete Rozelle is empowered to step in and decide which players or draft choices shall go to the team losing the player.

The NFL Players' Association says the rule unfairly restricts a player's ability to set his own terms and amounts to forced servitude.

The organization contends that teams are wary of signing a free agent because they have no idea whom the commissioner might take in exchange.

Mackey, who signed with Baltimore Colts in 1963, said a player should be able to sign with a team where he can be a regular instead of riding the bench. Mackey played for the Colts nine years, then with San Diego Chargers.

Lawyer James McKay, also of Washington and defending the NFL club owners, said in an opening statement that a labor dispute was at issue, and that the controversy should be resolved through contract bargaining and the U.S. Labor Relations Board.

"These regulations (NFL rules) are reasonable under any anti-trust standards, particularly in view of the way the National Football League must operate."

McKay pointed out that NFL bylaws are aimed at keeping the league balanced by upgrading weaker clubs.

"Professional football has flourished because of these team equalization rules. Without them, the results would be detrimental to all in professional football."

City juniors on B.C. team

Four Victoria players have been selected to the 12-member B.C. team for the Canadian junior badminton championships, March 22-25, in Ottawa.

The University of B.C. student then teamed with Miss McLorg to a 13-15, 15-9, 18-16 win over Miss Larson and Timar in the mixed doubles final.

Miss Smith and Miss Sluggett won the women's doubles by taking a 15-9, 17-16 decision over Miss Backhouse and Cheryl Ann Bailey and Miss Skillings won the women's singles title by defeating Miss Sluggett, 11-7, 5-11, 12-11.

Indians sign Brewer cut

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians of baseball's American League have announced that they have signed veteran outfielder Ken Berry to a contract for the 1975 season.

The 33-year-old Berry, an 11-year-veteran, was released by Milwaukee Brewers two weeks ago, after hitting .240 in 98 games last season.

Bowling interest drops in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Bowling alleys, which mushroomed into a multi-million dollar enterprise in post-war Japan, are skidding in popularity and closing down with increasing momentum. The Japan Bowling Alley Association said there were 3,732 bowling alleys with 120,000 lanes in Japan when the game was at its peak of popularity in January, 1973. But the number fell to 2,300 with 70,000 lanes at the end of last year.

IF YOU WON'T BUY A RETIREMENT SAVINGS PLAN FROM THE PERMANENT, PLEASE BUY ONE FROM SOMEONE ELSE.

A Registered Retirement Savings Plan from the Permanent could get you a nice refund on your 1974 income tax. And it can earn you healthy interest, compounded monthly.

But frankly, at the Permanent, we don't feel those are the big reasons for buying an RSP. We think the most important reason is to protect your future. We're concerned when we see people making good money, enjoying the good life — but not taking steps to ensure they can still enjoy the good life when they stop working.

If you start an RSP at the Permanent this year and make regular annual contributions, you'll be amazed how fast the money will pile up. For example, if you had contributed $1,500 per year over the past 15 years, you would have already accumulated more than $42,000.

We have people to help put this saving power to work for your future. But if you decide to buy elsewhere, we'll understand. We'd rather see you with someone else's plan than none at all. The main thing is, don't let another year go by without getting a plan started. Last year you talked about it. This year, do it.

THIS YEAR, DO IT.

Connors strengthens claims by trimming Aussie veteran

AP—UPI

The southpaw from Bellville, Ill., moved up a notch in everyone's estimation Sunday by soundly defeating Rod Laver and strengthening his claim to the No. 1 spot.

Before a crowd estimated at 3800 at Caesars Palace tennis pavilion and a nationwide television audience, Connors faced the cool and cagey Laver for the first time and beat him in four sets, 6-4, 6-2, 5-6, 7-5.

Connors won the $100,000 winner-take all prize put up by Caesars plus a new automobile valued at $10,000. Laver didn't go away empty-handed. He will share in television money and get around $50,000.

At 36, Laver's reflexes may be slowing a bit. Both are left-handers and that gave neither one an advantage. But Connors hit a two-fisted backhand with all the power in his 22-year-old muscles and Laver indicated that gave him trouble.

"It's different playing those double handers," said Laver. "You have to get used to them."

With his two-fisted backhand, Connors probably hits the ball as hard or harder than anyone playing tennis today. He covered an amazing amount of territory with his springy legs, went to the net well and volleyed with sharply angled shots that very often caught Laver flat-footed.

Attack is the name of the game for Connors and he seldom let up, although Laver did ace him half a dozen times. Connors' own serve was often too hot for Laver to handle and all he could do was get a little wood on the ball. Laver was forced frequently into weak defensive returns which Connors more often than not put away with ease.

Laver got his big serve going at its peak in the third set, which he won, but that was too late. The red-haired Australian, however, did not fold in the fourth set against Connors, who didn't slow down a bit. In the 10th game of the fourth set, Connors was at match point five times but Laver fought him off and held his service to tie the set at five.

Connors then held his service to go ahead 6-5 and broke Laver with a love game to win the fourth and final set, 7-5. Twice during the last game, Connors got points when a ball tipped the net and popped out of Laver's reach.

Connors has been accused of arrogance in past victories, but this time he was a gracious winner.

"It wasn't a one-sided match," he said. "Rod mixed it up very well. The whole court was used."

Connors suggested a rematch and a weary Laver said with a smile, "sure, if I get a year younger I'll think about it."

Someone asked Laver if Connors' deceptiveness beat him and he replied, "it wasn't deceptiveness that beat me, it was just that my poor old body couldn't get there in time."

Aside from a few gestures, the sometimes temperamental and mischievous Wimbledon and United States Open champion was a gentleman throughout the match. On one match point he did not hear an out call and, thinking he had won, tossed his racket high in the air and hurdled the net in celebration. But when told his shot had landed beyond the baseline, he returned to position and play was resumed.

"Today I found out a lot about myself," Connors said. "I wasn't quite a gentleman — I was a gentleman's gentleman."

"I had to win the fourth set," Connors said. "It was vital. If we'd gone into a fifth set, it would have been to his great advantage.

"Today I concentrated better than I ever had in my life," he added.

Laver explained his chief problem.

"At crucial times the ball kept coming up short and gave Connors enough time to come to the net. My best hope was to keep him back and for me to come to the net.

"I didn't put nearly enough pressure on Jimmy from the beginning, but I felt my timing get better as the match got into the third and fourth sets."

Laver went into the match an 8-5 underdog.

Hemmeter sets new deadline

CHICAGO (UPI) — World Football League president Chris Hemmeter says a go or no-go decision would be made about March 15 on whether the league will operate in 1975.

Hemmeter said he was working on a three-phase program, first, to establish credibility for the league; second, to open up communications in areas in which franchises might be located; and third, to arrange for funding of the teams. Phase two is expected to be complete by Feb. 15.

Bernie Geoffrion
. . . only wife knows

Geoffrion refuses to explain resignation

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League announced Monday night the resignation of Bernie Boom Boom Geofrion as coach.

The Flames said he will be replaced by Fred Creighton, coach of the Flames' Omaha farm club in the Central Hockey League.

Geoffrion, 44, had been coach of the Flames since the team's inception in 1972.

He steered the expansion franchise into the NHL playoffs last season, losing to the ultimate Stanley Cup champions, Philadelphia Flyers, in the opening round.

The announcement was made at the Omni, the Flames' home rink, by general manager Cliff Fletcher as Geoffrion stood at the back of the room.

Fletcher said Geoffrion first approached him earlier in the day and "asked to be relieved for personal reasons."

"I want to say there isn't another person who could have done better coaching job in getting this franchise off the ground," Fletcher said. "I regret that he is leaving the bench."

Fletcher said Geoffrion will remain with the Flames as his assistant.

Geoffrion, a colorful coach who had a brilliant 16-year playing career with Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers that earned him a place in hockey's Hall of Fame, refused to answer questions concerning the reason for his resignation.

"It's a personal thing," Geoffrion said. "The only person who knows is my wife. I know it's a sad day for me because this is my life."

Geoffrion said the decision had been gnawing at him for a couple of months and that he reached his decision to step down following Sunday night's 5-3 victory over Minnesota North Stars.

Geoffrion said he told his wife of his decision when the team arrived back in Atlanta the following morning and "she couldn't believe it."

Geoffrion said he had called three members of the Flames — Keith McCreary, Noel Price and Pat Quinn and "they couldn't believe it either.

"But I have to realize I have a family and a wife," Geoftrion said. "You can ask me any kind of question you want but you'll never know why. I'm not going to answer any questions about why I resigned."

Geoffrion, native of Montreal, wound up his playing career with the Rangers after spending 14 seasons with the Canadiens. He scored 393 goals in 883 regular-season games and 58 in 132 playoff games.

He was named coach of the Rangers in 1968-69 but was forced to vacate the job because of a stomach ailment. He was then named to the Rangers' scouting staff and stayed in that capacity until he took over as coach of the Flames on May 22, 1972.

When he retired as a player after the 1967-68 season, he was fifth on the all-time NHL goal-scoring list and eighth on the all-time points list. He was also the second player in NHL history to score 50 goals in a season, 1960-61.

Sunday night's win left the Flames in last place in the Patrick Division with 54 points, one behind third-place New York Islanders. Atlanta has a 22-20-10 record.

During his tenure, Atlanta had a 25-38-15 record in its initial season and reached the playoffs last season with a 30-34-14 mark.

Geoffrion said the Flames were being taken over by a capable coach in Creighton, who has served in the minor leagues for 12 years.

Creighton won three Eastern Hockey League championships at Charlotte and won the Central Hockey League title at Omaha. His coaching record in 2½ seasons at Omaha is 92-68-33.

Bruins' new approach works
Orr sparks win over Flyers

For most of this National Hockey League season, says coach Don Cherry, the Bruins have either run into hot goalkeepers, had the puck bounce in funny ways, or a ghastly combination of both. But Sunday they tried a different approach and came away with their best-played game since before the all-star break, a 5-1 victory over Philadelphia Flyers.

Defenceman Bobby Orr had an outstanding game, scoring a goal and assisting on the other four and Gregg Sheppard contributed a pair of goals to the victory.

Bruins struck for three goals in the first period in posting only their third win in the last 10 games.

Phil Esposito made it 2-0 with his 47th goal of the season and the Bruins went on to register their 16th win in 19 starts against the Flyers at Boston Garden. Philadelphia has not won a game in Boston since its first visit, Nov. 12, 1967.

"The puck went in for us tonight," said Cherry. "Sooner or later it had to start bouncing for us."

Victory kept the Bruins nine points behind the front-running Buffalo Sabres in the Adams Division. Buffalo posted an 8-1 win over Kansas City Scouts on Sunday.

In other action, Rod Gilbert scored four goals in a game for the second time in his NHL career but New York Rangers could manage only a 5-5 tie with Detroit Red Wings; Montreal Canadiens took over top spot in the Norris Division by outscoring California Seals, 5-1; Atlanta Flames stopped Minnesota North Stars, 5-3; and Chicago Black Hawks salvaged a 1-1 tie with New York Islanders.

In a game at Oakland, Montreal-goalkeeper Ken Dryden posted his 11th straight victory on the road in helping the Canadiens move two points up on the idle Los Angeles Kings.

Wood, with Bob Ward at third, Len Easton at second and Bob Dickson at lead, now advances to the provincial final Feb. 10-11 at Prince Rupert, in a best-of-three series with the B.C. Curling Association champion.

Kraus had come from behind a 6-3 deficit to tie the score at 6-6 by counting three with an 11th end final rock takeout. Earlier, Wood had built up a 5-2 lead by stealing singles on the second, third and fourth ends.

Kraus reached the playoff with a 9-7 win over Gary Sigurdson of Cloverdale, while Wood had qualified by winning four of his first five games.

HONOLULU (AP) — Arnold Palmer backed away from a short putt — then missed it — and let obscure Gary Groh escape with the $44,000 first prize Monday in the rain-plagued Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

Groh, a thin-lipped 30-year-old who had never won before, dropped an 18-foot birdie putt on the final hole just as the once-again frustrated Palmer bogeyed the 17th hole.

It gave Groh a final round of 68, four-under-par on the water-logged course and a 274 total, 14 under par.

For Palmer, the 45-year-old veteran, it was another in a two-year series of bitter disappointments and frustrations. This one may have hurt the most. He got so close — so tantalizingly close — and still failed.

A dramatic turn-around in fortunes late in the round lifted Palmer from a two-stroke deficit into a share of the lead after 16 holes and delighted his large, mud-spattered, barefooted gallery.

But it lasted just long enough for him to miss the green on the 17th, just at the time Groh was playing the 18th hole.

Palmer, seeking an end to a two-year victory drought and making his strongest challenge in that time, chipped seven feet short. He hitched his pants with the old, familiar gesture, stepped to the putt, and hung over it.

Eventually he backed off.

He stepped to the putt again, stroked it and missed.

It was a bogey and his share of the lead was gone.

Seconds later Groh sank his putt and Palmer trailed by two with one hole to play.

The challenge was over — and Palmer's look of grim frustration reflected his emotions as he stood on the 18th tee.

He finished with a 71 and a 276.

Al Geiberger, the skinny veteran who led or shared the lead much of the bright, warm, sunny day, birdied the 18th hole and claimed a second with a three-under-par 69 and a 275 total, one ahead of Palmer.

Australian veteran Bruce Crampton and Lou Graham tied for fourth at 277. Crampton had a closing 68 and Graham a 72.

Jack Nicklaus, who won this tournament a year ago, closed with a 69 but was well back at 281. He was tied with United States Open champion Hale Irwin, who had a 68.

The 7154-yard course was drenched with five inches of rain that washed out Saturday's play and was subjected to another heavy shower that disrupted play Sunday.

Casual water still formed pools and puddles all over the course and filled a number of bunkers.

Palmer started the day one stroke back but a bogey on the 10th dropped him two behind Geiberger.

Geiberger, howeveer, three-putted the 15th and made bogey from a bunker on the 16th just as Palmer rolled in a five-foot birdie putt.

Groh, playing one hole in front, bogeyed the 17th from a wet trap and suddenly Palmer had a share of the lead. It lasted only long enough for him to bogey the next hole.

Forrest Fezler fired a 68 Sunday to take the lead from Geiberger but he had a 40 on the front nine Monday to blow his chances.

Scorpions drop rough opener

Champions of the Dogwood Inter-City Senior "A" Men's Basketball League, the Scorpions played their first playoff game Sunday, lost, 103-102, to Burnaby-New Westminster Broncos and now are on the brink of elimination.

The best-of-three semi-final resumes Saturday at 8 p.m. at Central Junior High School and if a third game is necessary it will be played 2 p.m. Sunday at Central.

Scorpions played well enough to win Sunday — they defeated Burnaby three times in four league games — but Derek Sankey's basket with less than 30 seconds remaining gave Burnaby the win.

Scorpion coach Howard Tooby said Monday that the game was very physical and that the taller and heavier Broncos used roughhouse tactics, particularly against league-leading scorer Bob Burrows, who still managed 37 points.

Brian McKenzie played a strong game, hitting for 25 points, but Dave Morgan, who averaged 16.3 points per game over the season, had trouble with his shooting and managed only six points.

Sankey, who was second to Burrows in league scoring, topped the Broncos with 32 points and was their leading intimidator.

Tooby said that he didn't plan to make many changes, but that there would be some minor adjustments in the defence.

Bridgman and Fraser fire significant goals

Mel Bridgman scored a record-equalling goal Sunday but it was Curt Fraser's tally which turned out to be the winner for Victoria Cougars.

Bridgman, the runaway scoring leader in the Western Canada Hockey League, scored his 47th goal of the season midway through the first period of a game against the Chiefs in Kamloops.

It was the burly centre's third goal in two nights and it equalled the record set by former linemate Brad Anderson last season. With a team-record 64 assists in his total, Bridgman now leads the league with 111 points.

Fraser's goal came midway through the final period and boosted the Cats into a 4-2 lead. The scoring shot was Fraser's first in the last 12 games, a skein stretching back to Jan. 3.

The 16-year-old rightwinger injured an elbow early last month, missed two games and has been having his problems around the opposition net since returning to action. But he made no mistake on the Sunday shot, which beat goalkeeper Mark Earp cleanly.

The goal came only 50 seconds after teammate Al Hill had snapped a 2-2 tie with his 18th of the season. Don Cairns was the other Cougar marksman.

The loss was only the third for Kamloops on home ice this season and all three have been at the hands of the Cougars.

Victory moved the Cougars 11 points up on Medicine Hat Tigers in the Westren Division and broke a losing streak at two games. Cougars have played six more games than the runner-up Tigers.

In other Sunday games, Winnipeg Clubs surprised New Westminster Bruins, 5-4, Calgary Centennials continued to dominate Regina Pats and posted a 4-2 win while Flin Flon Bombers scored a 6-4 win over the visiting Edmonton Oil Kings.

Last in the Eastern Division, the Clubs scored their second win in as many nights over Western Division opponents. The Clubs edged the Cougars, 4-3, here Saturday.

Captain Kelly Greenbank scored a pair of goals for the Manitoba team.

In Calgary, the Centennials posted only their eighth win this season, but their third against the Pats, a team they failed to defeat last year in regular-season and playoff activity when the teams met to decide the league championship.

At Flin Flon, Steve Montgomery scored early in the third period to snap a 4-4 tie and Rick Dorman scored an empty-net goal to cinch the victory.

Island roundup

Four quartets qualify for high-school final

Rinks from Courtenay, Nanaimo, Duncan and Victoria will meet in a double-draw competition on Saturday and Sunday in Nanaimo to decide a zone representative in the provincial boys' high school curling final.

North and South Vancouver Island competitions held last weekend in Qualicum and lake Cowichan qualified Robert Stirling's rink from Courtenay's George P. Vanier school, John Foster of Nanaimo District high school, Steve Williams of Cowichan senior high in Duncan and Kelly Oulton of Victoria.

Williams (Don McKinlay, Vic Gamble, Murray Blom) won the "A" side of the south Island double-knockout competition and Oulton (Jeff MacKenzie, Doug Benedict, Cole Kirby) qualified by winning the "B" event.

Stirling (Anthony Pisto, Robert Peterson, Richard Cote) went unbeaten in the north Island playdown, and Foster (Dave Elgie, Kevin Malone, Ken Marzocco) made it through "B" event.

Duncan honor to McCauley

DUNCAN — A well-known name in basketball and football circles in the Cowichan Valley, Ross McCauley, 17, was chosen the athlete of the year at Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce awards night over the weekend.

McCauley is now playing basketball with the Cowichan senior secondary Thunderbirds and was named to the B.C. Commercial League all-star team as a guard. He also led the Cowichan Timbermen football team to their best season in six years as quarterback.

Achurch was instrumental in the success of the games, and is now engaged in plans for the 1975 games. He is also president of the Duncan Senior Soccer Association and has been coaching juvenile soccer for about 15 years.

Nanaimo joins boxla league but talent may be scarce

Nanaimo has been accepted as the fifth member of the Western Lacrosse Association and has been given permission to sign five WLA players to help bolster its lineup for the 1975 season.

However, after tabulating the players selected Monday in the amateur draft by National Lacrosse League teams, the pickings may be slim for the Hub City crew.

The six professional teams drafted 20 WLA players and six graduates of the Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League in its second annual draft, conducted in Philadelphia.

Among WLA players selected were Dave Durante of Coquitlam Adanacs, Al Lewthwaite of New Westminster Salmonbellies, Chris Hall and Roger Dubyna of Victoria Shamrocks and Dave Evans and Taki Vohalis of Vancouver Burrards.

The still-to-be-named Nanaimo entry was formally accepted at a league meeting in Vancouver on the weekend and team-president Frank Cooper says the squad will consist of the nucleus of the Nanaimo Labatts Senior "B" team of last season.

Don Morelli, who played for Nanaimo Luckies of the Inter-City League in the 1960s, has been signed as coach and Dave Weighell will serve as general manager.

Among the players Nanaimo has committed for the upcoming season are Pete and Phil Ashbee, sons of hall-of-famer Don Ashbee, and Ken Maughan, a former Inter-City League regular.

"Our prime objective is to find a sponsor and get about half-a-dozen more players," Cooper said Monday. "We have a large executive and we're confident we can put a contending team on the floor this season."

WLA-commissioner Colin Cruickshank said Monday that the league is considering a 24-game schedule for each team, with Victoria and Nanaimo playing home games on Wednesday and Saturday nights.

"Adding Nanaimo has reduced our travel commitments considerably," Cruickshank said, "and we're doing everything possible to make sure there will be a contending team there."

The schedule will likely be drawn up at a WLA meeting in Vancouver on Sunday, Cruickshank added.

The WLA commissioner was not surprised at the number of western players drafted by the NLL although he feels the league will only lose about 20 players to the pros. Players drafted Monday have not signed contracts with the pro clubs, only letters of intent to play in the NLL.

The WLA-champion Salmonbellies had six players taken — Lewthwaite, Jim Giles, Ken Winzoski, Jim Grady, Ed Goss and Bob Tasker.

Vancouver lost six players — 1974 rookie-of-the-year Vohalis, Ted Gernaey, Evans, Brian Davidson, Nick Delmonico and Doug Hayes while the Adanacs had Durante (the 1974 scoring champion and most valuable player), John Allen, Art Talson, Jim Rickbeil, Greg Thomas and Jerry Pinder taken.

Durante was the only WLA player drafted by Quebec City.

Boston (formerly Toronto Tomahawks) drafted Lewthwaite, Davidson, Hall, Allen and Gernaey. And Victoria-star Ivan Thompson, not eligible for Monday's draft, has agreed to join the Boston squad.

Long Island (formerly Rochester Griffins) took Dubyna, Talson, Hayes, and National Hockey League-regular Rick Dudley.

Maryland Arrows drafted Bill Bradley, a former WLA all-star who played last season for Montreal, and Brian Tasker.

And Philadelphia Wings drafted NHL-goaltender Doug Favell.

Favell, Bradley and Dudley all played in the NLL last season as "bonus picks" and were returned to the draft this year as an equalization move.

League-spokesman John Ferguson of Montreal said Monday the NLL will commence play on April 12 and teams will complete their 56-game schedules by Sept. 21.

Mexico pulls tennis upset

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Raul Ramirez took his third match in three days Sunday by whipping Roscoe Tanner of the United States as Mexico won the second-round North American Zone Davis Cup tennis competition.

Ramirez won 7-5, 7-9, 6-4, 6-2. Friday he beat Stan Smith, the No. 1 man on the U.S. team, and Saturday teamed with Vicente Zarazua to win the doubles from Dick Stockton and Bob Lutz.

The first and fourth, second and third-place clubs will meet in best-of-seven playoffs with the winners advancing to the best-of-seven final.

Ferguson said the league will have five games telecast coast-to-coast in the United States on the CBS network and 16 other games will be carried on a 29-station network in the eastern states.

Westerners have little hope of keeping a share of first place, however, as co-leaders Vancouver BuzzBombs take on winless Vancouver Jonos in the final league doubleheader of the season. In the other game UBC takes on SFU. Both games are Wednesday at Vancouver.

In the playoffs, the fourth-place Saints will play the league champions and Simon Fraser will take on the second-place finishers.

City squash players win

Victoria Racquet Club players won championships in three events Sunday in the annual Vancouver Island Invitational Squash Tournament at Shawnigan Lake Boys' School and Duncan Squash Club.

Mike Greenwood took the "A" class title, Stan Heard the "B" class and Blair Krueger the "C" class, while Kevin Gillett of Shawnigan Lake was the "D" class champion.

Greenwood defeated Dave Thom of Victoria in the semi-finals and then downed Egon Kuhn of Victoria, 3-0, in the final. Kuhn had scored a 3-2 win over Peter Goodwill of Vancouver in the semis.

Heard downed clubmate Dave Cox, 3-2, in the "B" final and in an all-Victoria "C" final Blair Krueger blanked Dave Hutchins, 3-0.

More than 70 players took part in the two-day tournament, which is part of the Pacific Coast Squash Association circuit.

M.V. Chesnut's Garden notes

In one small patch of our backyard lawn we have a little ground-hugging weed called Yarrow, which has resisted every attempt to knock it out with ordinary weedkillers.

Not that I mind too much, for it is an attractive little-plant, with finely-cut, ferny foliage and a pungent, aromatic fragrance when trodden or crushed between the fingers.

In fact, I think it might make quite an interesting substitute for grass in a small lawn, rather like the chamomile lawns of Elizabethan days.

In any case, I am pretty sure I could eradicate it with one of the newer reinforced weedkillers if the stuff ever became a real nuisance.

The true name of yarrow is Achillea, pronounced ak-il-EE-a, and while some of the family are wildflowers and weeds, the group contains several very attractive garden plants for our perennial borders.

The plant takes its name from the legendary Greek hero; Achilles, and according to legend, his physician and teacher, Chiron, discovered the plant and used it in the art of healing, naming it after his favorite pupil.

★ ★ ★

It stands 18 to 24 inches tall, with ferny foliage,, and bearing clusters of little white double flowers, each one shaped like a tiny chrysanthemum but no bigger than a button.

Flower arrangers go for this one in a big way, using sprays of the tiny flowers as mixers or fillers in vase or bowl arrangements.

★ ★ ★

A vastly improved plant developed from The Pearl is Achillea ptarmica "Snowball," which has somewhat larger, fuller, and more perfectly formed flowers.

A red-flowered plant of the same general type is sold under the name Cerise Queen. Good roots of these yarrows (or Sneezeworts, to use their Old English name) can be purchased for less than a dollar each.

For the back row of the perennial border we have another and taller yarrow, Achillea filipendula "Gold Plate," bearing great flattish heads of yellow flowers on stems up to five feet tall, rising above silvery, aromatic foliage and blooming from July to September.

Gold Plate is an unusual plant, making a most effective conversation piece in the garden, and its flowers may be cut and dried for use in winter bouquets.

★ ★ ★

Gold Plate has a shorter sister called Coronation Gold, standing about three feet tall and with stems so rigid and strong that no staking is required.

This one starts blooming a little later than Gold Plate — in early August — but continues its display into the late fall months.

Planting is best done in the spring; they are fond of peat moss well mixed into the soil and prefer a site in full sun and a little on the dryish side.

The roots are rather stringy and should be spread out in a shallow, flat-bottomed planting hole 3½ inches deep. All members of the Achillea family have a marked dislike for fresh manure.

★ ★ ★

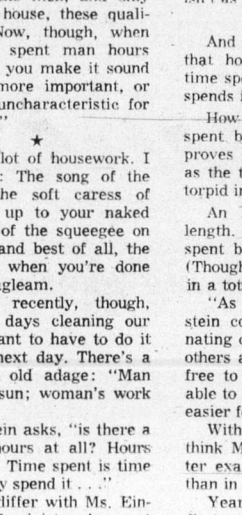

The yarrow tribe has a few dwarf members in addition to my pet lawn weed, and some of this make good rock garden plants.

One of these, Achillea ageratifolia, is the subject of a ding-dong battle among the learned botanists of the world, with one faction insisting that it isn't an Achillea at all, but a Chamomile.

I wouldn't know, but by any name the little fellow is as cute as a bug's ear, making a mat of silvery foliage never more than six inches tall and covers with tiny daisies.

Achillea argentea is similar but is grown purely for the charm of its shining silver foliage.

In writing recently about our trouble with the kitchen sink, I mentioned the "man hours" my wife had put in on it before I called the plumber.

"I won't go so far as to say I was shocked," writes Susan Einstein, "but I was surprised. I really thought your conscience would have been raised by now!

"You call the hours your wife spent trying to unplug the sink 'man hours.' I take it you call them that because unplugging a sink is thought to be man's work. However, your wife is obviously disproving that since she was attempting to do it . . ."

As Ms. Einstein's criticism is rather complex, perhaps I should try to answer it one paragraph at a time:

First, her surprise that my conscience has not been raised by now. Actually, I have a very active irrepressible conscience. I do the best I can to keep it bottled up, but it always gets out. It hangs around like a cloud, casting its shadow of guilt.

Believe me, my conscience never fails to show up when my wife has a bad day with the plumbing. I always offer to call the plumber at once, but of course she is only able to work at the plumbing on Saturday or Sunday, as she has her regular job the rest of the week, and I'm not about to pay some plumber time and a half if I can help it.

It's possible, I suppose that Ms. Einstein meant my consciousness, not my conscience. As a man whose character has been virtually overhauled by the arguments of the feminists, I certainly would be hurt if indeed she meant that. My consciousness is not only raised but rampant.

"If you spent time cleaning up the house," Ms. Einstein asks, "would someone call your hours spent woman hours? Probably not. Although a chauvinistic person might say you were doing women's work."

"Years ago, when all the plumbing was really left to the men, and only women cleaned the house, these qualifiers were valid. Now, though, when you say your wife spent man hours unplugging the sink, you make it sound as if that task is more important, or that it is somehow uncharacteristic for her to attempt it . . ."

Actually, I do a lot of housework. I find it exhilarating: The song of the vacuum cleaner; the soft caress of warm sudsy water up to your naked elbows; the squeak of the squeegee on the window panes; and best of all, the sense of fulfillment when you're done and the house is all agleam.

As I remarked recently, though, after spending two days cleaning our house, I wouldn't want to have to do it all over again the next day. There's a lot of truth in the old adage: "Man works from sun to sun; woman's work is never done."

"Why, Ms. Einstein asks, "is there a need to say man hours at all? Hours are hours are hours. Time spent is time spent . . . or how they spend it . . ."

Here is where I differ with Ms. Einstein, and with all feminists who want to go gunning down every "man" in the language, as if they were vermin. I mean the ones who want to replace motormen with motor persons.

The hours a man or woman puts in on a job are called man hours. It's a statistical device, meaning a unit of labor, and has nothing to do with sex.

Thus, if my wife and the plumber had worked together on the sink, and the job took them two hours, we would say they had put in four man hours. Of course we could say they worked two man hours and two woman hours but it isn't as neat.

★ ★ ★

And what of Ms. Einstein's motion that hours are hours are hours, and time spent is time spent, no matter who spends it?

How are we to say that the time spent by the little busy bee, who improves each shining hour, is the same as the time spent by the alligator lying torpid in the sun?

An hour has quality, as well as length. How can we measure the hour spent by lovers in each other's arms? (Though, technically, they are putting in a total of two man hours.)

"As I think you will agree," Ms. Einstein concludes, "when we stop designating certain tasks as men's tasks, and others as women's tasks, we all will be free to perform the tasks we are best able to do . . . and that will make things easier for everyone!"

With that, I do agree; and I don't think Ms. Einstein could ask for a better example of that principle in action than in my own house.

Years ago, when my consciousness first was raised, we stopped designating certain tasks as men's tasks and others as women's tasks, and made a new and refreshing division of tasks according to which task each of us was best able to do.

My wife has been doing the plumbing ever since.

Sydney Harris

Thoughts at Large:

With a family pet, the younger the child, the better the dog understands him; it is only after we acquire abstract ideas, systems of belief and rigid attitudes that we lose the natural power to communicate with those less intelligent than us.

★ ★ ★

Man seems to need at least three lives in order to profit from his faults: the first in which to commit his errors, the second in which to commit exactly the opposite errors, and the third in which to walk what Buber called "the narrow ridge" between the two.

★ ★ ★

Couples who are "blindly in love" need to be reminded of Madame Recamier's injunction that "lovers should keep their eyes wide open during the courtship — and half-closed after the marriage," whereas in most cases it's precisely the reverse.

★ ★ ★

The cook eventually comes to imagine that the presence of his finger improves the taste ofthe dish.

★ ★ ★

The happiest marriages are those between a husband who knows just what to listen to, and a wife who knows just what not to say.

★ ★ ★

Speaking of "making sense" reminds me of Proust's acerbic comment: "Everybody calls 'clear' those ideas which have the same degree of confusion as his own."

So many Americans seem proud that the Watergate denouement "proves" that their system works; but all it proves to me is that a part-time night guard was on the ball when practically nobody else was.

★ ★ ★

An interesting semantic shift in the last few years is the departmental change of name in many companies from "public relations" to "public affairs," as the former phrase has become discredited — prompting the puzzled inquiry as to when a "relation" turns into an "affair."

★ ★ ★

(Which reminds me of the late Sen. Alben Barkley's comment: "When I was in the House, I was told that the difference between the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was that the senators were too old to have affairs. They only have relations.")

★ ★ ★

Half the people suffer from not looking ahead, and the other half from looking ahead further than they can see.

★ ★ ★

Until enough of us can accept the fact that we are all more alike on the inside than we are different on the outside, there is absolutely no hope for any real solution to our basic problems of living together.

★ ★ ★

No matter how loving a wife may be, she doesn't care how much her husband stays away from home in the daytime. (As the tart paraphrase goes, "I married him for better or worse, but not for lunch.")

★ ★ ★

Speaking of matrimony, I think the first and best maxim was expressed by Thomas Dewar, when he suggested: "A husband should tell his wife everything that he is sure she will find out, and before anyone else does."

★ ★ ★

A young person can live alone and like it, but beyond a certain age most people who live alone look it.

★ ★ ★

It provides an insight into the criminal temperament that most people who are wanted by the police aren't wanted by anyone else. (A sense of alienation, more than poverty or need, drives the malefactor.)

★ ★ ★

I have never understood the phrase "a senseless murder," which seems to imply that there can be sensible murders.

★ ★ ★

People who encourage pigeons must feel friendless beyond belief.

★ ★ ★

The only time you can walk into a lawyer's office without paying for it is when you're soliciting for a political dinner.

The hardest thing about being a person with nothing to do is that you have to teach yourself ways to pretend you are busy.

Pianist Pablo's protege

Casals' widow to wed

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marta Montanez Casals, widow of Spanish cellist-composer Pablo Casals, and world renowned pianist Eugene Istomin confirmed Monday that they will marry within a few weeks.

An unconfirmed report that Mrs. Casals and Istomin, a protege of her late husband, were planning to wed was carried in a San Juan, Puerto Rico newspaper last week. Istomin said there will be ceremonies in both New York and San Juan, where Mrs. Casals lives. Istomin has not been married previously.

Mrs. Casals, 38, director of the annual Festival Casals in San Juan, is a cellist and was married to Casals, her teacher, in 1956 when he was 80. Casals died at the age of 96 in 1973.

Istomin, 49, who was a child prodigy, appeared annually at the Casals festivals from the time they were first given in Prades, France, in 1950. Casals called the pianist "my son" and Istomin was with Casals when he died.

Istomin made his debut with the New York Philharmonic in 1943 and has performed with the major symphony orchestras of the world, most recently on a six-continent tour. He is a member of a leading trio with violinist Isaac Stern and cellist Leonard Rose.

LONDON (AP) — Richard Wattis, 62, the British actor who perfected the art of portraying pompous civil servants, collapsed and died during the weekend in a London suburban restaurant.

Wattis began in movies in 1937. With his supercilious bespectacled face and upper-class drawl he created a typically English figure of fun in a string of films. He appeared in the movie I Am A Camera which starred Julie Harris and Laurence Harvey.

No-No dancer now yes-yes

Sally has new fans 'but the same fanny'

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Fan dancer Sally Rand, now 70 and a grandmother but still able to prance, made her 1975 debut Monday and vowed to tour 40 weeks this year.

"New fans, but the same fanny," laughed Miss Rand, who streaked to stardom at the 1933 Chicago World's Fair by dancing, apparently nude, veiled only by two ostrich feather fans.

Sally, looking much younger than her 70 years, opened a week's engagement at a suburban Newport, Ky., nightclub. A promoter said she's being paid $1,500 for her week's work—several 10-minute stage shows a night.

"I do exactly the same fan dance I did in Chicago in 1933," she said. "And why not? I'm the original. When you say fan dancer you don't think of Tillie Tish. You think of Sally Rand."

A fascinating, mile-a-minute talker, Sally was both elegant and eloquent as she chatted with curious reporters before taking the stage. Her hair was sparkling blonde, her face nearly wrinkle free and her body trim.

Twice divorced and not currently married, Miss Rand proudly passed around pictures of her granddaughter for reporters to admire.

In her street clothes she was dressed to the hilt. She sported high heels, a black, crushed velvet dress,, pink scarf and a gigantic feathered hat topped with pink bows. She carried a fan-shaped purse.

Asked why she continues a 40-week a year tour schedule at age 70, she repled, "because I love show business. I'm a ham and I really love that applause.

Singer Elsa Alsen dies in nursing home

NEW YORK (AP)—Opera singer Elsa Alsen, 94, who performed about 200 roles from 1900 to 1935, died Friday at a nursing home here, her family said Sunday.

A contralto and then a dramatic soprano, she had been a specialist in Wagnerian roles and a member of the San Francisco, Los Angeles and Chicago opera companies.

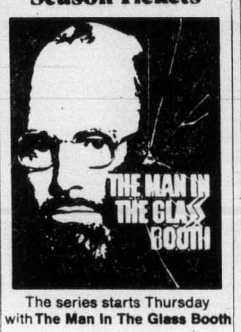

Born in Obra, Poland, she made her operatic debut in Heidelberg, Germany, in 1902. She first came to the United States with the Wagnerian Opera Company in 1923.

PROVINCIAL COURT

The preliminary hearing of a charge of murder punishable by life imprisonment against an 18-year-old Victorian began Monday in Victoria Provincial Court with an order prohibiting publication of the evidence and other proceedings.

The order was issued by Judge William Ostler at the request of Douglas Christie, defence lawyer for Curtis William Christie, 1303 Gladstone.

He was arrested Oct. 16 in connection with the stabbing death early Oct. 15 of Stanford Wray, 53, of 1296 Palmer Close. Wray was found on the sidewalk of Grant near Fernwood, across the street from his parked car.

The hearing is expected to last four days. C. W. Vause is the prosecutor.

In the court section of Judge Harold Alder, jail terms totalling two years were ordered for Warren John William Wright, 20, address not known. Wright, an admitted heroin user with a sizeable previous record, was found guilty Jan. 22 by Alder after a trial.

It resulted from two charges containing six counts of uttering cheques in Victoria and Vancouver along with a third charge of theft of a TV set from a relative's home. Total value of the cheques and TV set was just over $2,000.

□

Ostler turned down a request for a conditional discharge for landed immigrant Paul Quentin Wilson, 18, of 1260 Union, saying the B.C. Appeal Court recently stated discharges must be considered "very extraordinary treatment."

Wilson pleaded guilty Jan. 13 to a charge of stealing a guitar Jan. 7 at Victoria International Airport. The owner later saw him enter a shop where the guitar was pawned.

Defence lawyer Rodney Smith said Wilson was having difficulties with his father over money and the pawn proceeds were to pay for car repairs. Smith mentioned possible immigration problems if there was no discharge but Ostler decided on a suspended sentence and six months' probation.

□

"It may be the number of suspended sentences that this man has had have misled him to think he could get away with it," Ostler said of John Mervin Bryant, 25, address not known, who pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Bryant kicked and struck the night manager of a cafe early Jan. 25 after an argumemt over damage done by Bryant to a glass counter the night before.

His record contained four suspended sentences between Aug. 30, 1969, and Aug. 8, 1973. Ostler noted Bryant had spent 10 days in jail awaiting hearing and fined him $200.

□

Suspended sentences and probation were set by Ostler for three persons.

Probation will last 18 months for Stephen Leslie Nicholas Pelvay, 17, of 1262 Roslyn, who pleaded guilty Jan. 13 to an Oak Bay charge of a house break-in Jan. 6, when $65 was taken from a wallet.

A one-year term of probation was imposed for Wayne Keith Miller, 20, of 2802 Rock Bay, who pleaded guilty Jan. 15 to theft of a truck Nov. 16 from his then employer, Goodwill Bottling, 35 Erie. He drove it off a road late Nov. 16, causing about $2,000 damage.

Ronald George Hall, 22, of 3050 Pickford, was put on probation for six months and fined $200. He was found guilty Jan. 15 after trial on an RCMP charge of prowling at night June 12 near a Colwood home.

□

In two separate drugs cases, Ostler set bail for Charles Ernest Menzies, 19, of 949 Menzies, and Gary Edward Mottle, 18, of 425 Campbell, at $500 in their own recognizance. Menzies was charged with possession of MDA for the purpose of trafficking and possession of hashish Saturday in Victoria while Mottle was charged with possession of marijuana Sunday in Victoria for the purpose of trafficking. Both cases will be called again next week for further hearing.

□

Francis Henry Galley, 19, address not known, pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of possession of a small amount of marijuana early Sunday in Victoria and admitted a 1973 conviction for possession of a narcotic. He was fined $200 as a second offender.

Court battles chill

A topcoat became the latest wrinkle in judicial robes Monday when Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre put his on over his normal wear in the traffic section of the CUPE-picketed Victoria Provincial Court building at 633 Fisgard.

In addition, a court officer wore a parka over his regular uniform and a court clerk looked natty, while transcribing the proceedings, in white gloves.

The court building and the police station next door are only two in the ring around Centennial Square feeling the end of heating Friday as the CUPE strike concluded its first week.

Electric heaters are going full blast in many corners of both buildings, especially in the city jail, but not even the heaters can keep the chill out of traffic court.

Of the three court sections, it's the only one close to the building's street door — so close that traffic court operates its street-level justice at street-level temperatures, heaters or not.

Another chill factor in the court building is an overtime bill for the provincial government. The court staff is composed of members of the B.C. Government Employees Union, which has decided not to cross the CUPE lines, but passes have been allowed for seven BCGEU members to keep basic court services going.

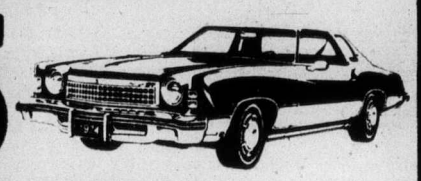

The trouble is basic services take more time than the eight-hour days of seven workers so overtime is starting to pile up. Not for the strikebound city, however, but for the government which employs the court staff.

People who are put on probation normally are taken into jail and then moved over to the court staff's offices to sign routine papers before release. The same procedure is being followed but, instead of taking an hour or so, it can take several hours owing to lack of staff.

ATTENTION PARENTS

In Greater Victoria School District (No. 61)

There is a possibility that our schools may become involved in a strike-lockout of some staff. The Greater Victoria School Board makes this announcement so you may be prepared.

If there is a strike-lockout, remember these points:

1. All schools will be open for approximately one hour each morning. They will open at the regular time. Children will receive homework assignments, then be sent home.

2. Do not send food to school with your children.

3. All special activities—noon-hour, after-school and evening—will not be held in schools until after the strike-lockout.

The School Board will try to give parents advance warning of any strike-lockout, but cannot guarantee it. Read your newspaper or listen to the radio and TV news.

Teachers will remain on the job, but will not perform work normally done by non-teachers.

When not giving assignments or marking, teachers will attend professional training programs.

The short school day has been chosen as the best way of keeping our schools open if a strike-lockout occurs. It will conserve heating fuel and reduce litter.

Seed supply runs short

'Whole world' growing garden

By LORRAINE ATHERTON
Colonist Reporter

As the popularity of kitchen gardening grows, supplying Victorians with seeds becomes more and more difficult.

Local seed retailers said Monday that they expect the boom in home vegetable growing to continue, and even increase this year. Combined with a decrease in the number of seed producers, it's causing a shortage of seed.

David Sims of Woodward the Florist on Fort said some suppliers are filling only half his orders, "and some seeds I can't obtain at all."

Spanish onions are particularly hard to find, he said, and heavy demand has pushed up the price of popular peas and beans from 35 cents a packet two years ago to 99 cents today.

A spokesman for Buckerfield's on Pandora said he expects a heavy demand but it's too early to say whether there will be shortages. Seed shipments are running about three weeks behind schedule, he said.

"Last year we had the most sustained demand I've seen for 25 years," he added.

He predicted a substantial increase in prices this year, up from about 25 cents a packet to about 39 cents.

Island Seed Co. West Saanich Road will be limiting orders of some seeds to one pound per order, Muriel Coleman said.

She is expecting more gardeners than ever this year, especially first-year gardeners. The market for seeds has become steadier in the last few years, spreading out fairly evenly from late February to early May, she said.

It seems as though "the whole world is growing a garden," she said.

Even if there are no serious shortages, "we won't have as much of some seeds as we would like to," she predicted.

Part of the problem is that some producers are having trouble getting acreage — "urban sprawl and all that" and others have switched to better paying food crops, she explained.

And she blamed the jump in demand on the high cost of food.

Spokesmen for Woodward and Buckerfield's agreed that "the world seed situation is tight," as producers turn to more profitable crops.

Sims suggested that intensive homegrowing of vegetables may be here to stay, at least in Victoria. He said he knows of a local landscaper who has worked on 30 new homes in the last year, and all of the owners wanted vegetable gardens included in their plans.

'Napoleon's Army to be side tracked

In a letter to council Monday night Capt. C. H. Shaw of 3972 Tudor, complained of "a constant parade of pedestrians, horseback riders, and trail motorcyclists continuing to use what is now private land as an access between the park and Tudor Avenue.

"Indeed, on occasion, the numbers of passersby have borne a distinct resemblance to Napoleon's Army during the retreat from Moscow," Shaw's letter said.

Personal persuasion having failed to gain respect for his privacy, Shaw asked council to divert park traffic to a proper footpath.

Council endorsed a recommendation from municipal engineer Cliff Warren that an improved footpath be located slightly west of Shaw's property between 3950 and 3940 Tudor, at a cost of about $500.

Oak Bay Council

Time clock topic to tick in camera

Oak Bay aldermen sped through a lengthy agenda Monday night, with the air of people preparing for more important things.

There was little indication of the business at the in-camera meeting that followed the 30-minute open meeting, unless Ald. Shirley Dowell's mention of a time clock meant anything.

She reminded Ald. John Goult that he wanted to talk about a time clock as the public session drew to a close, but he said that was a matter to be raised "in camera."

And Mayor Brian Smith threw out a couple of hints as he warned Oak Bay residents that the word in Oak Bay from now on is "recycle, don't burn it in the incinerator."

That was his comment as aldermen adopted two "unhappy" bylaws to restrict the burning of garbage, in readiness for an area-wide lockout of municipal employees.

Ms. Dowell
. . . her reminder

Otherwise aldermen received and filed, or referred to committee the majority of agenda items.

Only decisions taken were to allow the pruning of some trees and to allow Oak Bay Police Board to hold a public auction of found property.

And there was a brief flare-up between Ms. Dowell and Goult on the subject of the local 1975 Muscular Dystrophy Campaign.

Oak Bay Firefighters Association had asked permission to set up voluntary toll booths in shopping centres to raise money for the campaign.

Ms. Dowell argued that since muscular dystrophy is still a part of the United Way campaign, from which it received $6,300 last year, it should not be permitted to campaign separately.

Goult said that quarrels between the two campaigns were none of council's business, and he could see nothing wrong with the idea of voluntary toll booths.

"We are injecting Chest politics into council's business," he said.

"It is not up to us to endorse the Chest point of view against the muscular dystrophy campaign. It is a matter for the two bodies concerned to settle."

Goult's stand was supported by the majority of aldermen as council voted 4 to 1 to allow the booths.

Saanich names adviser

Passmore serving public again

For a while there, it looked as though veteran Saanich alderman Les Passmore really was going to retire from municipal service. But he couldn't make it last.

Passmore attended Monday's council meeting, looking rested after his month-long retirement, and promptly found himself appointed to fill a vacancy on the Advisory Planning Commission.

The appointment came shortly after council discussed the pros and cons of adding alternates to the commission. They were suggested as insurance against quorum-less meetings which plagued the commission last year.

Mayor Ed Lum assured council that with its three new members, "who are very keen," the commission should not be without a quorum.

Council decided against appointing alternates.

After council unanimously approved Passmore's appointment to the commission's last vacancy, Ald. Fred Severson remarked: "I'm sure we'll have a quorum now, Mr. Mayor."

Passmore was in the act again later in the meeting.

Ald. Joe Bourque conveyed to council a request from Passmore that "we do our level best to exclude the senior citizens centre and Hampton Park area" from the impending lockout of municipal employees.

Passmore was concerned that Meals on Wheels and other services for the elderly would be affected.

Municipal administrator, W. M. Tremayne told council the centre could remain open during a lockout with the understanding that the municipality could not provide janitorial services and if heating oil deliveries are not cut off.

Council agreed, without a formal motion, to do everything in its power to exclude the centre from effects of a lockout.

Rezoning fee scale passes

Saanich council approved its first fee scale for rezoning applications and land-use contracts Monday.

Council approved the fees in principle last month as a means of recovering the cost of processing applications, and, as Mayor Ed Lum put it, "discouraging frivolous applications that take up staff time."

Fee for rezoning single-family dwellings and duplexes will be $75; multi-family dwellings, commercial, industrial and other rezonings and land-use contracts will be $150 minimum.

Fee for multi-family dwellings, above the $150 minimum, will be $4 per unit, and for commercial or industrial $4 per 1,000 square feet of property.

Land-use contracts will cost $4 for each 1,000 square feet over the first 50,000 square feet.

If a land-use contract goes to public hearing, an additional charge of $150 will be imposed to cover processing and advertising costs.

Municipal planner Tom Loney estimated the fees will add $9,746 to Saanich revenue.

Byelection slated for Esquimalt

A byelection to fill the seat vacated by the resignation of Esquimalt Ald. George McCreadie will take place Saturday, March 22, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Nominations will be taken Monday, March 3, from 10 a.m. to noon at the municipal hall, 1229 Esquimalt.

Advance polls will be held March 20 and 21 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

McCreadie moved to Campbell River for business reasons last fall, commuted to council meetings for a time after his re-election to council in November, then resigned last week.

Who else but Rolf Harris?

Waltzing 'kangaroo' wobbles nostalgia

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

The thing about Rolf Harris, from Sydenham, London, England, via Australia, (ya know, the man with the dirty didgeridoo and third leg) is that while looking curiously like a weathered insurance salesman (striped tie 'n all) he manages to waltz like a genuine down-under kangaroo.

And gets everybody wobbling along too.

In fact the best parts of his McPherson performance Monday night were dripping and unashamed nostalgia for the aboriginal in all of us.

This time round he set up his audience with that terrible British humor, then wooed them back tenderly into their comfie seats with a slide show of northern Australia's abbo country — where he recently took a two-week Land Rover walkabout.

Arguably, his best number was neither jape, song nor painting — though he did all three.

It was a London Daily Mirror-style news story about a Darwin family crowded into a toilet for five hours during the Christmas cyclone that devastated the town.

According to Harris the family four-year-old's main worry was whether Santa Claus was all right. Yes, it was explained, Santa must be okay because the "(Christmas) cake has gone" along, of course, with the rest of the town.

Harris is a professional who always manages to pull in local relevance to his shows.

And at Monday night's 2½-hour-plus show there were more than a couple of asides directed at the alleged coldness of the theatre cut off from its usual heating system during the municipal employees' strike.

His Tie Me Kangaroo Down didn't fail to include — "Why are they all out on strike mate?"

Despite the strike, the theatre, heated by efficient electric fires and a packed audience composed mainly of well-coated middle-agers, was surprisingly warm.

He's also been preparing a half-hour CTV show and will be performing in Toronto's Massey Hall and Ottawa's National Arts Centre this summer.

Witnesses tell bingo trial they worked for no pay

Witnesses testifying Monday in the Victoria County Court trial of Harold and Ivy Morris on charges of theft by conversion from the London Boxing and Athletic Club and its women's auxiliary, told the court they the witnesses spent hours weekly on club business and received no remuneration.

No witness knew of any club authorization for payment for services to themselves or the accused persons whom they identified as being in charge of bingo games operated by the two organizations between February 1971 to December 1972.

The crown alleges the Morrises were in control of the two organizations during that period.

The crown also alleges the accused couple set aside cash from the clubs' bingo games to pay accounts at B.C. Hydro and Victoria Press which were later paid through cheques drawn on the club's bank account.

The case is being heard by Judge M. L. T. Drake and a jury. Donald Farquhar is crown prosecutor, and Kenneth Murphy defence counsel.

Laurel Way, treasurer of the women's auxiliary since its founding sometime in 1967 or 1968, said she would receive the cash receipts from the auxiliary's bingo games from the Morrises several days later for depositing in the auxiliary's bank account.

She said neither B.C. Hydro nor the Victoria Press accounts were paid out of the women's auxiliary bank account.

Mrs. Way testified she did not receive any payment for her service to the club — she did not expect any — as it was a voluntary organization.

John Duddy, recently-elected president of the London Boxing and Athletic Club, said he helped at bingos along with more than 15 other persons, during the periods of the alleged offences.

He said Morris ran the games while his wife took care of the cash.

Duddy said during the time Morris ran the club, he himself spent up to 10 hours a week coaching teams and assisting at the bingos. He did this, Duddy told the court, because he enjoyed his association with other club members and Morris.

He said there was no formal arrangement for payment for services, as the club was for amateur sport.

Allan Rands, who joined the club in 1967, told the court he spent about six hours a week on boxing club activities during the time.

He said he was never paid for his services nor did he expect to be as the club was "a charitable organization."

He told the court that he left the club in the fall of 1973 after a disagreement with Morris over lack of elections for the club's executive and statements Morris had made about his wife, Sheila.

Mrs. Rand testified that she spent almost 20 hours a week running the food concession at club activities. She testified she received no money because "it wasn't a job."

She said she donated her time in the interest of better sports in the city.

Berger
. . . recommends if

Canadian Press

The British Columbia government will probably act on recommendations for a unified family court system at the fall sitting of the Legislature, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said at the weekend.

Mr. Justice Thomas Berger of the B.C. Supreme Court, chairman of the Royal Commission on Family and Children's Law, has recommended the unified family court system.

Macdonald told a meeting of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association in Harrison Hot Springs that the government will listen to public opinion on the matter.

"We'll wait until the fall for legislation on the Berger commission," he added.

Berger told the meeting that an experiment in a new kind of family court system has been successful in the Lower Mainland municipalities of Surrey, White Rock, Delta and Richmond. He said family counsellors "have been the key to success of the project so far."

About 70 per cent of family problems that might have ended up in court were resolved by counsellors, he said.

Victoria's 500 federal service tradesmen are ready to begin a series of rotating strikes at federal installations on southern Vancouver Island, Tom Dalzell said Monday.

The strikes—which could hit places as diverse as Victoria International Airport, William Head prison and the Esquimalt dockyards—woull see picket lines established for one day, then withdrawn, the regional Public Service Alliance of Canada representative said in an interview.

The strikes could begin as soon as Feb 12, he said, when the PSAC will be in a legal position to take strike action against the federal government.

Locally, the members of the General Trades and Labor Group, one of the more than 20 components which make up the PSAC, have already selected strike captains, assigned picket duties and taken all steps necessary to enable them to walk off the job with only a few minutes' notice.

Dalzell said there was no way of knowing which, if any, federal facilities would be picketed on any given day.

To make it harder for the government to anticipate the strikers' plans, even he would not know until 6 a.m. each day where lines would be established.

"We've adopted this policy because it wouldn't surprise us to see them bring in armed services people as strike-breakers," PSAC national negotiator Jack Pinkerton, interviewed jointly with Dalzell, said.

The men were speaking the day after an Esquimalt Recreation Centre meeting at which they gave a report on PSAC negotiations to about 280 people.

About 25 of those people were not members of the PSAC. In a move unusual for a union in the midst of bargaining, the alliance opened the meeting to the public.

Those who attended were told that bargaining for 19,000 members of the general trades and labor group had deteriorated to the point where strike action was extremely likely by next week.

"It looks like a strike situation—a bad one," Dalzell said at the meeting.

Pinkerton told the crowd it seemed unlikely the federal treasury board would find a conciliator's report, due to be filed Wednesday, acceptable.

Treasury board chairman Jean Chretien has indicated a raise of more than 20 per cent would be unacceptable to the government, Pinkerton said.

The conciliator has indicated he would file a recommendation the PSAC "could live with," he added, even though it would not be as much as had been requested.

Dalzell said the general trades group had modified its earlier request for a wage rate equal to 90 per cent of what outside tradesmen were being paid for performing similar work in a given region.

In a conciliation meeting last week, the group had dropped its request to 80 per cent, a wage increase which would amount to about 30 per cent in the hourly rates.

Tradesmen and laborers now earn between 45 and 95 per cent less per hour—if they are employed by the federal government—than they would get if they worked in the private sector.

Electricians in the Lower Mainland-Vancouver Island area, for example, are paid about $10 an hour. Federal electricians get $6.50 an hour. Laborers in the same area get $7.50, compared with $4.09 in the federal service.

Girl who jumped truck still in 'poor condition'

A 14-year-old Colwood girl remained unconscious and in poor condition Monday in Victoria General Hospital with severe brain injuries suffered Friday evening when she jumped from a moving pickup truck on the Trans-Canada Highway at Millstream.

Colwood RCMP, who located the truck driver Saturday, said they were satisfied no attempt at foul play was involved but added the investigation was continuing in the case of Stephanie Odinson, 1 Durkrill Road.

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm another reader who wants to challenge your reply to the woman whose son was allergic to cats. The doctor said the cat had to go. The woman's second husband (he brought the cat with him when he moved into her home) said, "Nothing doing. The kid should go. We can find a nice foster home for the boy and it will be better for everybody." The child's mother was very upset and wanted to know if her husband was nuts. You said, "Probably."

I say the man is far from nuts. All I have to do is look at our friends. Two couples in our crowd (both married more than 25 years) split within the last six months and the reason was their kids. One couple busted up because of their son's shoulder-length hair and smoking pot in the house. The other couple had a daughter who moved in with a group of weirdos and her father cut her out of his will.

At present I see two other marriages (plus my own sister's) headed for the rocks. Again they are all fighting over the life-style of their children.

The happiest marriages are the ones without children. I am a bachelor, aged 44, successful in my profession, free to do as I please, and I'm having a wonderful time. If I should ever decide to marry, I will get it in writing — "NO CHILDREN." just sign me —Sam.

Dear Sam: I hope you remain single. By doing so, you are bound to make some unsuspecting woman very happy.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a few choice words for that lawyer whose older clients asked him to change their wills and scratch out the names of grandchildren, nieces, and nephews who "never bother to come around."

I am one of those young people and I don't care if anybody leaves me one dime. I have two well-heeled relatives — both bores. I've tried to spend time with them, but it's the same old story: "Why don't I ever see you? I'm so lonely. I wish you'd call on the phone more often. My days are so empty." Nothing but self-pity. In the meantime, on my last visit, four people dropped in and three friends telephoned.

So, to all you old folks who are sitting on your money, either your memory is shot or you just like to gripe. To put it more bluntly — get out of your rocking chair and call ME when you have something cheerful to say. I haven't heard a good word from you in years. I don't want your money. I just want you to enjoy life and stop complaining. — A relative.

Dear Relative: That letter may be the most expensive one you've ever written. But I admire your spunk and thank you for it.

My friend, Marilyn, and I have just lost a combined total of 27 pounds.

Don't write and ask how we did it. I'll tell you. It took us two months of discipline, dedication, and terminal famine.

But frankly, it was worth it. We have more energy, we look better and I can't tell you what it's done for our appetites.

As I was saying the other day, "I can hardly wait for hot weather so I can cross my legs. It's something I've always wanted to do."

"I know," said Marilyn, "I just threw away all my pantyhose for a woman 72" or over."

"What do you mean?" asked Marilyn.

"Right now, we are borderline sex symbols. A few pounds could tilt us either way. Do we want truck drivers whistling at us like springer spaniels when we walk down the street? Do we? Marilyn! I'm talking to you."

"I'm thinking."

"Do we want to have our husbands decorate us with gowns and furs and wear us on their arms like a Timex watch? And be at a table in a restaurant and have drinks sent to the table from a tall, blond stranger at the bar? Are these questions getting too hard for you, Marilyn?"

"Give me a minute."

"Do we want to go through life being alienated by women because we wear a size eight dress? And have their hushands surround us at parties? What kind of life would it be to wear a bathing suit without a floor-length towel? To turn in a 24-hour girdle with eight hours left on it?"

"I suppose we'd have to get used to panting phone calls, door-to-door salesmen asking if our mothers were at home, and husbands crazy out of their minds with jealousy," mused Marilyn.

"But most of all, Marilyn," I said, "and consider this carefully, we would never see gravy again."

"How many times do I have to tell you," I snarled, "that it sounds better to say we've lost a combined total of 27 pounds!"

Phoney phone bit stings flat dweller

Apartment dwellers in Greater Victoria were warned Monday by Victoria police that someone is using the old check-the-phone bit again.

A young man described as 18 or 19, six feet tall, slim build and with fairly straight long blond hair tried the bit five times Saturday in an apartment building at 855 Vancouver and got away with $80.

Police said the young man knocked on the door of the suite of a 77-year-old woman and told her he was from B.C. Tel and wanted to check the phone. After being allowed in, he began to make a phone call and then asked for old telephone receipts.

The woman said she had none and he then asked for a glass of water. While she was getting it, he took $80 from her wallet and left.

Research vessel readied for sea

The cold and soggy work of University of Victoria marine biologists will be a little easier soon.

A 54-foot aluminum research vessel will be launched this week at Shore Boat Builders in New Westminster, and towed to Sndney for fitting out at Philbrook's Shipyard Ltd.

The $250,000 boat, in the planning stages for four years, should be in operation by the first of June, Dr. Jack Littlepage said.

Littlepage, service vessel co-ordinator, said the boat is unusual in that it has been designed specifically as a "floating laboratory." Most research vessels are converted from other purposes.

The university's present vessel, on loan from the transport ministry, can be used only for collecting animals.

The new boat "is a laboratory in the sense that we can do experiments right on board," Littlepage said. It will be equipped with electric power, two sea water systems, hot and cold water, wet and dry laboratories, scuba diving facilities, and hydraulic crane.

The circulating sea water systems will allow study of less hardy animals which otherwise could not be collected and transported to labs on land.

An Omega power drive system, which maintains a steady, slow speed, will also be installed. Unusually slow speeds are required for collecting some specimens, such as plankton.

Although the vessel will be used mainly for marine biology research and teaching, it will be available to other university departments.

Victoria man nabbed by California police

A former Victoria man who is the subject of two warrants issued by Victoria police was arrested Sunday in California for investigation of possible charges of kidnapping and theft of an airplane.

Police in San Bernardino identified the suspect as John Richard Turley, 22, formerly of Quadra Street, who is wanted in Victoria on charges of theft of a U-drive car and false pretences.

California authorities said a woman told police Sunday morning her son had not returned from a trip to Disneyland with a man named Turley, who had told her last week he was a Scoutmaster and would take the son to Disneyland.

A three-county search by police ended when Turley landed a small private plane at an airport in Barstow, Calif. The plane, said to have been stolen at Fallbrook, Calif., was running out of fuel.

Police said the boy on the plane, Edward George Iris, 11, told them he had not been kidnapped.

Victim charged in own robbery

NEW YORK (UPI) — A man who was robbed of 10,400 tickets to the Puerto Rican lottery Sunday was arrested later and charged with illegal possession of the tickets, police said.

Police said three bandits robbed Luis Alverez, 44, of the tickets, fired two wild shots at him and fled in their car.

Police said all three were charged with attempted murder, robbery, criminal possession of deadly weapons and reckless endangerment.

But later, police said, Alverez, too, was arrested and charged with possession of gambling slips after he told detectives that the holdup men took his tickets to the "Bolita," a Puerto Rican lottery which is legal in Puerto Rico but illegal in New York.

Police said some 10,400 "Bolita" tickets and two revolvers were recovered from the suspects' car.

Step toward 'socialism and worse'

Tory flays budget intent

By PETER LLOYD

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberall government's latest budget was described Monday by a Progressive Conservative MP as a deliberate inflationary step "to socialism and worse."

Pointing to increased government spending, Frank Oberle (Prince George-Peace River) said in the Commons "there is no doubt that the budget was designed deliberately to perpetuate inflation."

He said Finance Minister John Turner's forecasts show there will have been a 95-percent increase in government spending between 1968 and 1976. The money supply was being expanded to cover this spending, with inflationary results.

"It's the welfare state that can no longer be sustained by fiscal policy and the printing press is in high gear."

The government's intention of promoting social equity through its tax policy "used to be called instant Utopia," Oberle said. What was named "the just society" by Prime Minister Trudeau in 1968 "now is better known as the unjust society."

He was speaking on the government's bill to implement income tax changes contained in the Nov. 18 budget. Debate on the bill is expected to continue all this week.

Instead of making it easier for people to depend on the state, the object of the tax system "should be motivating greater productivity," he said.

"I don't see anything in the bill to do that . . . It's another mile on the road to centralization, the road to total dependency on the state, to socialism and worse."

Oberle said the supply of money in the economy should be pegged to the country's "inventory of resources in a finished or semi-finished state." This use of real commodities as a measuring device would get rid of the pretense of the gold standard.

It also would provide western economies with new tools to take on "the Third World and Communist countries who have been beating us with our own weapons."

The bill includes personal income tax cuts that the government says cannot be paid out to taxpayers until the proposed legislation is approved. The cuts affect 1974 returns.

The tax measures took effect when the budget was delivered, but need parliamentary approval to become permanent.

Jack Ellis (PC—Hastings) accused the government of trying to blackmail Parliament by saying that tax refunds will not be paid until the bill is passed. The deadline for filing the 1974 returns is April 30.

For 1974, the cuts will mean benefits to individual taxpayers of between $150 and $500. Those minimum and maximum figures would rise next year by another $50 and $250, respectively.

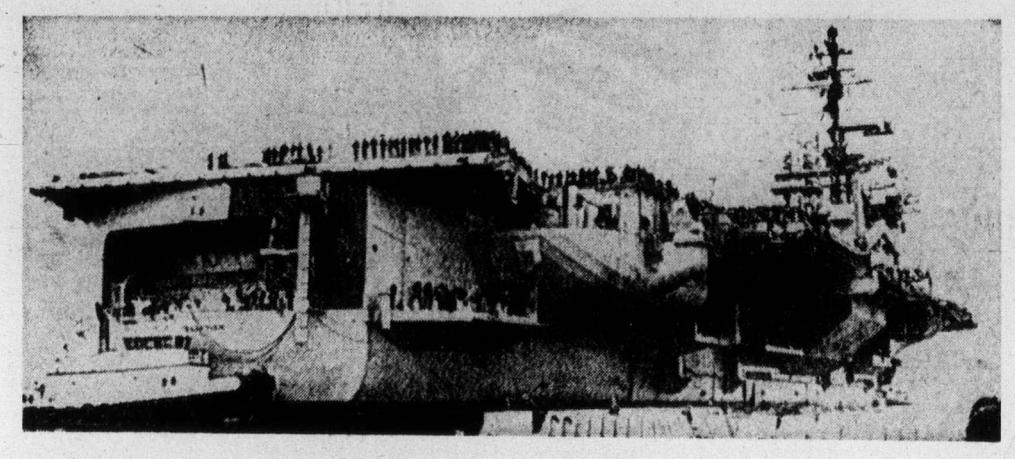

Ellis repeated Conservative calls for increased personal income tax cuts and blasted housing proposals tied in with the budget:

Referring to a provision that would remove developers' land carrying costs as tax deductions, he noted a "trend of the governemnt to tax hell out of developers."

The government has not created a land banking system and the provision will mean higher housing prices, Ellis said. This was because only the private developers are in a position to bring land onto the market.

He said a proposed tax shelter for apartment builders starting multiple dwelling construction by the end of the year will "do little for apartment construction."

The time required for advance planning and approval of construction plans by various authorities often was two to three years, a lead time that would eliminate any encouragement provided by the proposed tax shelter.

Car salesman quit his job to advise potential buyers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — What's the matter, friend? Did you get hauled through a knothole on that last car deal? Charley Baliconis might have spared you the misery.

After 10 years as a car salesman, Baliconis was out of a job when auto sales soured last fall.

So he changed professions.

He has moved to the customer's side of the desk and uses his background to advise persons who are about to wade into a car deal.

Here's how it works:

If you want to buy a car and make the deal yourself, Baliconis will appraise your trade-in, tell you what the dealer has invested in the car you want to buy and tell you the amount of difference you should pay.

That service runs $25.

Or he will handle the entire transaction for you for $100. Baliconis says he can't help people who are good horse traders and know something about the car business.

But, he says, most people are lousy horse traders and know nothing about the car business.

"I've been helping them from $300 to $700 worth," he says.

"I know automobiles and I know what a trade-in is worth. A car salesman can't convince me it's worth $200 less."

Baliconis says his years as a closer and a salesman have taught him what markups are on new cars and how far a dealer can cut the sticker price.

"I know many salesmen, dealers and closers throughout Portland," he said. "And I know which ones need the business."

He will also tell you how to pay the least in interest and the best way to sell your old car if you want to deal without a trade.

Baliconis says he doesn't imply that used car dealers are a batch of bandits.

"There are just as many bandits on the buyer side of the fence," he says. "It's just that the salesman is working to make the best commission he can and the buyer is working to get the best buy he can.

PRAGUE (AP) — A scarecrow in a Czech field failed totally in its function when sparrows turned the pocket of the scarecrow's old coat into a nest.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says it has learned from a reliable source that the murder of 13 persons in the north-end Gargantua Club Jan. 20 was an "error."

The newspaper quotes the source as saying more than one gunman went to the club to kill someone believed to have told police the names of several persons who set a fire in the city in December.

The newspaper had no further details on the fire in question although the source said it had been planned in the club.

"They (the gunmen) were convinced the leak came from someone who was in the Gargantua Club because that's where the December torch job was planned," the newspaper quotes the source as saying.

The newspaper said there were more than 13 persons in the club when the gunmen entered but some were permitted to leave because they were "friends."

The gunmen shot and killed club manager Rejean Fortin, 43, and wounded another man, Pierre Lamarche, 29. Lamarche and the remaining 11 witnesses were locked in a tiny beer storage room along with Fortin's body where they died of asphixiation shortly after the club was set on fire.

Meanwhile, police are holding four persons — three men and a woman — in connection with the incident. They are to appear Wednesday at a coroner's inquest into the deaths.

The four were arrested Friday on warrants issued by fire commissioner Cyrille Delage, appointed ad hoc coroner and special investiga-

Abbey occupation

Fears delay Indians' exit

GRESHAM, Wis. (UPI) — An attorney for the Monominee Warrior Society said Monday evacuation of the Alexian Brothers novitiate has been delayed because he has been unable to secure a promise there will be no bloodshed when the Indians surrender.

The attorney, Robert Bryant of Birmingham, Ala., said he had tried twice to contact the sheriff to get a guarantee the Indians would not be harmed when they leave the building they have occupied since New Year's day. Bryant made his comment after a two-hour meeting in nearby Shawano with Col. Hugh Simonson, commander of National Guard troops here.

He indicated the delay could mean that the Indians will not leave the building until Tuesday.

Bryant also said that he was seeking amnesty for those inside.

"We are asking complete amnesty," he said. "This land is land the society deserves."

After making his statement, Bryant headed for the abbey, saying he was going to brief those inside on his meeting with Simonson.

The Alexians agreed Sunday to turn the abbey and land surrounding it over to the Menominee tribe for "$1 and other considerations." The other considerations were not spelled out, but Brother Maurice Wilson said it was understood that the Indians would make a "good faith effort to provide fair reimbursement" for the facility.

The abbey and its lands have been valued at $750,000 by the Alexians.

Simonson said an effort was to have been made to evacuate the Indians on Monday, if possible.

Simonson said the persons inside the abbey would be bused to a checkpoint outside. He hinted that they would be turned over to local law enforcement officials at that time for possible prosecution.

Those inside included actor Marlon Brando and a Milwaukee civil rights activist, the Rev. James Groppi. They joined the Indians during the weekend.

Between 40 and 50 men, women and children moved into the rambling structure and vowed to stay until it was given to them. The women and children were evacuated several days ago.

The Indians said they wanted the structure for a health care facility. Use of the mansion and grounds as a vocational training school was also proposed.

Seattle's Channel 9 will show a dozen of the best silents at 9 p.m. Saturdays starting Feb. 15 with Chaplin's 1925 Gold Rush and following with Intolerance Feb. 22. The others, in order:

March 1, Fairbanks Sr. in the 1920 Mark of Zorro; March 8, Keaton's 1927 The General; March 15, the 1927 Beloved Rogue with John Barrymore; March 22, Sennett's 1923 The Extra Girl; March 29, Fairbanks of 1924 as The Thief of Bagdad; April 5, Griffith's 1921 Orphans of the Storm; April 12, W. C. Fields of 1925 in Sally of the Sawdust; April 19, Valentino in 1922's Blood and Sand; April 26, Lon Chaney in the 1923 Hunchback of Notre Dame, and May 3, John Barrymore of 1920 as Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

A fantastic series and don't miss even one.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer — The two actresses who were Vivien Leigh's spoiled sisters in Gone With The Wind went on to security as wives of movie producers while Miss Leigh went on to greatness and tragedy. They were Evelyn Keyes and Ann Rutherford, the latter one stuck with George Montgomery in Orchestra Wives.

Today's question starts an unusual week. Colonel Georges Picquart lived from 1854 to 1914, mostly in France, and gained enduring fame for an unpopular job. Leo Genn played him in a movie. His identity Wednesday.

Tuesday highlights

7:00 p.m. — A special starts Cher's new variety series. Chauvinists will wish her as much success as Sonny — 8.

7:30 — It's a Musical World apparently visited Victoria, joining the White Eagle Polish dancers — 2.

● 8:30 — First-rate actors Anthony Hopkins and Simon Ward star in a Hallmark drama All Creatures Great and Small, about a Scots veterinarian and his brother — 5.

9:00—Outlook and the Victoria Symphony. Good luck to both — 10.

11:30 — Carol Lawrence in the ABC suspenser The Centrefold Murders. Stay up if you're a holdout for a fold-out — 4.

Tuesday movies

12:45 noon — Bachelor Party (well acted 1957 ordinary-guys drama), Don Murray, E. G. Marshall, Carolyn Jones, scads more. It's all right but it's really a late-night flick — 8.

1:00 p.m. — Go West, Young Man (1936 Mae West). The fun on days with Mae West movies is to see what she'd do with the other titles — 11.

3:30 — Wait Until Dark (first-rate 1967 blind-woman suspense), Audrey Hepburn, Richard Crenna, Alan Arkin. A Mae West movie entitled Wait Until Dark would be as good but much different — 5.

7:00 — Return of the Seven (fairish 1966 western sequel), Yul Brynner, Warren Oates, Robert Fuller. Magnificent it ain't — 12.

8:30 — Death Be Not Proud (new John Gunther family tragedy), Arthur Hill, Jane Alexander, Robby Benson. May be excellent — 4.

9:00 — Dead Ringer (amusing 1964 Bette Davis). With Karl Malden and Peter Lawford but Bette and Bette are the best bets — 11.

11:30 — The Lawyer (routine 1970 TV pilot), Barry Newman, Diana Muldaur. Said Mae West to a lawyer, Come up and sue me some time — 12.

12:00 — Come Next Spring (missable 1955 rural epic), Ann Sheridan, Steve Cochran. Now there's a Mae West title — 6.

2:30 — Appointment for Love (dated, dull 1941 romantic comedy), Charles Boyer. A tarnish on the Golden Years of films — 7.

2:35 — Assignment: Munich (poorish 1972 TV pilot), Roy Scheider, Richard Basehart. Only two things translate into any language: music and what Mae West has — 8.

Tuesday radio

8:00 — NHL hockey, Pittsburgh at Vancouver — CJVI (900).

8:00 — CBC Tuesday Night starts a series of four comedies stretching over 300 years with William Wycherly's 1675 Country Wife — CBU (690).

● Recommended.

The Haida Monarch, a $8.2 million self-propelled log carrier, has joined Kingcome Navigation's Pacific Coast fleet of barges and tugs after successfully completing her inaugural run with a huge load of MacMillan Bloedel timber.

The Monarch, built at Yarrows, Esquimalt, and commissioned into service late last year, hauled several thousand tons of logs from Gambier Island in Howe Sound north to MacMillan Bloedel's Powell River division.

Roy Henderson, manager of Kingcome — MacMillan Bloedel's towing and barging subsidiary — said he was "completely satisfied" with the new vessel's performance, particularly the way she handled during the actual dumping procedure.

"This first voyage of the Haida Monarch has proved the concept of the self-dumping, self-loading, self-propelled log carrier as a practical and efficient method of moving logs in large volume," said Henderson.

He was one of four persons who stayed aboard the Monarch when she unloaded for the first time at Powell River in mid-January. The vessel employs a system of ballast tanks and pumps that settle her deep in the water, then tilt her to port to slide the logs off the deck and into the water.

Henderson sees this addition to his fleet as the logical outcome of a pattern of water transportation development that began with huge cable-strapped bundles called Davis rafts and sailing ship hulls as methods of moving logs from the Queen Charlottes to the mills.

There are other self-loading and self-dumping log barges afloat, says Henderson, but none of them is self-propelled.

The concept was evolved by Kingcome personnel in Vancouver, refined and designed by the North Vancouver naval architectural firm of Talbot - Jackson and Associates. The Haida Monarch was built by Yarrows, and her engines came from General Motors in Ontario.

The new vessel's statistical profile is as impressive as her silhouette is strange to British Columbia's coastal shipping lanes. She is 423 feet in length with a loaded draught of 20½ feet and a carrying capacity of 15,000 tons of logs. Her twin engines are capable of 7,200 horsepower for a top speed of 14 knots and an average of 11 knots when fully loaded.

The two loading cranes on the deck operate off electrical generators and each is capable of lifting 50 tons of logs. Henderson said the Haida Monarch can load 1,000 tons an hour, for a total loading time of about 15 hours.

Henderson said the big advantage in operating a self-propelled log barge is speed. The Haida Monarch makes the trip from the Queen Charlottes to Port Alberni in about 45 hours, compared with the 75 hours it takes a conventional log barge towed by a tug.

Another important consideration that went into construction of the vessel was crew comfort. The deckhands' cabins aboard the Haida Monarch are comparable to the accommodation provided tourist-class passengers aboard cruise ships: tasteful and functional, if not sumptuous, Henderson said.

TORONTO (CP) — The mother of Joey Bellenie says the family has received more than 60 offers to kill the man charged in connection with the traffic death of their son last Dec. 13.

Judy Bellenie said in a telephone interview Sunday from her home in Burlington, Ont., that the death pledges have come by telephone and letter — all anonymous.

Thomas Martin, 29, is charged with criminal negligence in the death of Joey, 7. He fled too the United States and cannot be extradited.

Mrs. Bellenie said the pledges have varied.

"One person promised he would plant a bomb in his (Martin's) car, another that he'd kill him with a hypodermic needle, another that he'd drag Martin 600 feet under his car (Joey was dragged about 600 feet when struck by a car).

"Somebody else said he'd tamper with Martin's car and others said they'd shoot him."

Mrs. Bellenie said that some pledges have come from as far as California and Vancouver.

Martin was unavailable by telephone Sunday night at his brother's home in Cold Springs, Ky. It was thought he was staying there, but family members said they knew nothing of his whereabouts.

Former premier W. A. C. Bennett was reported in good condition Monday following minor prostate surgery Friday.

Hospital officials say the operation was "fairly routine" and that recovery is expected to be normal.

Bennett will be 75 on Sept. 6.

He is expected to remain in the Royal Jubilee Hospital for several more days before returning to his home in Kelowna.

Shadow inspectors all rattled

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Arizona doesn't have groundhogs to carry on the tradition of groundhog day, but the national weather service Sunday said rattlesnake shadow inspectors work about as well.

The weather service took note of the lack of Arizona groundhogs on its teletype wire to the local news media and related how the pioneers made do with a substitute.

"By experimentation," said the weather service, "(the settlers) found that the rattlesnake worked in the same way as the groundhog and was every bit as good a forecaster of the onset of spring. The only problem was that a person had to get pretty low down in order to determine if the rattlesnake actually saw his shadow." Also, after being snapped at by the rattler, a person became quite mean. So these rattlesnake shadow inspectors became low down, mean varmints. Most of their descendants live on today as weather forecasters in Arizona."

CUPE agent charged in CKLG case

VANCOUVER (CP) — An assault charge was laid Monday against a union representative in connection with a strike at radio station CKLG.

Richard Hughes, business agent for Local 636 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, is to appear in Provincial Court Feb. 13 to face a charge of common assault, laid by Larry Sell, the station's news director.

The charge arose from an incident Saturday when strikers attempted to keep management personnel from crossing into the station through a picket line set up by 30 people.

Union members voted more than a week ago to go on strike if management did not accept terms of a federal conciliator's report. The union accepted the report but management did not.

The champions finished the 12-team competition with 48 points, 14 more than runner-up Surrey. Victoria and Burnaby tied for third place with 30 points.

Vancouver representatives won the girls and mixed team competitions and finished third in the boys event, won by Maple Ridge. Victoria was second in the girls and fourth in the mixed.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association have announced that they have acquired left-winger Danny Gruen, formerly of Baltimore Blades.

Two years ago, Gruen, 22, who has been sought after by recruitment officials of several WHA teams, won the Central Hockey League's scoring championship with 80 points, and the league's high penalty minutes assessment with 194.

Rich Preston gave the Aeros a 1-0 lead in the first period and then made it 4-1 in the second period, following goals by Marty Howe and Jim Sherritt, and Jean Paul Leblanc of Baltimore.

Although 3000 short of a sell-out the Baltimore crowd was considerably larger than the ones the Blades played before in Detroit, when they were known as the Michigan Stags.

Following the all-star game on Jan. 21, the franchise was shifted to Baltimore, but the Blades played their first four games on the road, losing all of them.

The Aeros have drawn record crowds at Vancouver, New England, Minnesota, Los Angeles, Edmonton and Winnipeg and they've won every time.

As a visiting team, the Aeros have attracted eight of the 15 largest crowds in the playoffs and have won seven times.

Quebec Nordiques are also becoming a big drawing card and a spoiler. The Nordiques attracted a record crowd of 13,398 for their game against Serge Bernier, who trails Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets by three points in the scoring race, scored two goals including the winner for the Nordiques.

Hull scored his 45th goal Sunday, but the Jets dropped a 5-4 decision to Minnesota Fighting Saints, when George Morrison scored his second goal of the game and 20th of the season at 2:16 of overtime.

In Sunday's other games Vancouver Blazers, winners of 10 of their last 12 games at Pacific Coliseum, defeated Toronto Toros, 4-2, at Vancouver; and Edmonton Oilers edged Chicago Cougars, 4-3, at Edmonton.

Former Victoria Cougar, Murray Kennett scored his first WHA goal to tie the game for the Oilers in the third period and Tom Gilmore notched the winner at 3:16 for overtime.

Golfing sisters first and third

MIAMI (AP) — Donna Caponi Young closed with a five-under-par 67 Sunday to win the $40,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament by three strokes over Kathy Cornelius. Mrs. Young had a 54-hole total of 208.

Mrs. Young's sister, Janet Caponi LePera finished in a tie for third with Suzie McAllister at four-under-par 212, one stroke back of Mrs. Cornelius.

Jane Blalock, who had started the round tied for the lead with Mrs. LaPera, finished at 213 along with JoAnn Carner, Diane Patterson, Judy Rankin, Carol Mann, Carole Jo Skala and first-round leader Laura Baugh.

The victory in the initial LPGA event of the year was worth $5,700 to Mrs. young. The two-time United States open victor, who turned 30 last Wednesday, did not win a tournament last year while finishing 10th on the money-earnings list with $47,691.50.

Sandra Post, who shared the second-round lead with Mrs. LePera and Miss Blalock, slipped to a 74 for a 214 total. Miss Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., collected $1,000.

Notts Forest, Fulham need second replay

LONDON (CP) — Nottingham Forest and Fulham, seeking a berth in the fifth round of the English Football Association Cup against favorite Everton, battled to a 1-1 draw Monday.

The fourth-round replay between the Second Division soccer clubs took a total of 3½ hours to play. The score was 1-1 at full-time and remained that way after 30 minutes overtime.

The second replay will be played Wednesday at Fulham.

Another replay, between first-division Leeds and non-league Wimbledon, was postponed and rescheduled for Feb. 10.

Nottingham Forest's biggest crowd of the season, 25,361, watched as John Dowie gave Fulham a 1-0 lead in the 44th minute. Paddy Greenwood of Nottingham was carried off on a stretcher with a broken leg in the first minute of the second half.

Airdrieonians and Motherwell advanced to the fourth round of the Scottish Cup with away victories in third-round replays. Airdrieonians blanked Morton, 3-0, and will meet Falkirk in the next round, while Motherwell nipped Patrick Thistle, 1-0, to advance against Queen's Park.

In a third-round replay between Second Division clubs, Hamilton Academicals beat Montrose, 3-0, to advance against Dumbarton.

CAHA, pros in accord

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has reached a tentative agreement with both the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association concerning the drafting of under-age junior players, it was learned Monday.

CAHA administrative director Pierre Turmel said a verbal agreement reached between the CAHA and the two professional leagues prohibits the signing of junior players until they have "ended their junior hockey eligibility."

"In the past the NHL and the WHA have signed 18- and 19-year-old players" when they have had two and one years respectively remaining in junior ranks, he said.

Last year, 12 of the 77 junior players drafted by the NHL were under 20 while five of the 35 players signed by the WHA were not yet 20 the age when junior eligibility ends.

Commuted death kills morale

VANCOUVER (CP) — Senator Ed Lawson Monday told a commission inquiry into the Royal Canadian Mounted Police that "there will be serious breakdown in morale nationally and perhaps more than that," if the cabinet continues to commute death sentences of those who kill policemen.

"As a member of Parliament, I find myself in a rather strange position and don't wish to turn this hearing into a capital punishment debate," he said.

"When Parliament recently renewed its legislation on capital punishment, it said that if these ingredients were met — policemen or prison guards killed — capital punishment will be imposed."

Lawson told the sparsely-attended hearing that local RCMP members who discussed grievances with him were concerned that "this commitment of Parliament is not being carried out." He said policemen feel they are becoming sitting ducks, and are not getting the protection they were promised.

Referring specifically to the murder of RCMP Constable Roger Pierlet and Delta police Sergeant Robert McKay, Lawson said he feared the effects of "those kinds of (clemency) decisions."

"I would hate to see the American situation develop here where policemen approaching a parking ticket offence with a drawn .45-calibre pistol and the hands on the car routine," he said.

In an oral presentation to the commission, established in June to inquire into methods of handling public complaints by the RCMP and matters relating to internal disciplines and grievance procedures, Lawson said he was concerned primarily with present internal procedures in the RCMP relating to discipline, salary negotiations and working conditions.

Among his recommendations, Lawson suggested that RCMP members should have direct input into wage negotiations and that disciplinary decisions should allow for appeal to senior officers or a neutral board, within the force.

Lawson said in 15 years of participation in negotiations, conciliation and arbitration for the Vancouver Policemen's Association he had seen a "marked improvement in morale and in the efficiency of the force," in direct relationship to the degree of participation by policemen in decisions regarding salaries and working conditions.

He said that although some senior officers originally feared there would be a breakdown in the relationship between lower ranking policement ad their commanders, experience had shown such a breakdown did not occur.

In discussions with local RCMP members, Lawson said they did not believe they should have the right to strike, but they were concerned that they have "no imput, no consultation whatever in salaries, and perhaps more importantly, working conditions."

He said RCMP members also dislike present disciplinary procedures which often mean they must appeal a decision to the same senior officers who made the original judgment.

Meanwhile in Edmonton, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand Sunday defended the presence of 14 convicts at the National Conference on Native Peoples and the criminal justice system despite criticism by Edmonton police.

The convicts, including two murderers, were flown here from as far away as Nova Scotia to attend the two-day meeting.

The commissioner for Canadian penitentiaries, Andre Therrien, said it would have been unthinkable to have a conference on the criminal justice system "and not have representatives of those who are suffering the results of the system."

Therrien was reacting to a copyright story on CHQT radio during the weekend which quoted some unidentified policemen as complaining about "the ridiculous manner" in which men were released for the meeting.

The police also claimed Edmonton residents would be exposed to danger from the 12 federal prisoners and two inmates of provincial institutions.

Allmand and Therrien said the temporary absence program under which the 12 federal prisoners were released is being used constantly with a failure rate of less than 2 per cent.

They said the men were thoroughly screened before being allowed to attend. In addition, they said, provincial Indian brotherhoods nominated several who could not attend because of the security risk.

It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. Geoffrion refuses to explain resignation

Bernie Geoffrion
. . . only wife knows

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League announced Monday night the resignation of Bernie Boom Boom Geofrion as coach.

The Flames said he will be replaced by Fred Creighton, coach of the Flames' Omaha farm club in the Central Hockey League.

Geoffrion, 44, had been coach of the Flames since the team's inception in 1972.

He steered the expansion franchise into the NHL playoffs last season, losing to the ultimate Stanley Cup champions, Philadelphia Flyers, in the opening round.

Fletcher said Geoffrion first approached him earlier in the day and "asked to be relieved for personal reasons."

"I want to say there isn't another person who could have done better coaching job in getting this franchise off the ground," Fletcher said. "I regret that he is leaving the bench."

Fletcher said Geoffrion will remain with the Flames as his assistant.

Geoffrion, a colorful coach who had a brilliant 16-year playing career with Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers that earned him a place in hockey's Hall of Fame, refused to answer questions concerning the reason for his resignation.

"It's a personal thing," Geoffrion said. "The only person who knows is my wife. I know it's a sad day for me because this is my life."

Geoffrion said the decision had been gnawing at him for a couple of months and that he reached his decision to step down following Sunday night's 5-3 victory over Minnesota North Stars.

Geoffrion said he told his wife of his decision when the team arrived back in Atlanta the following morning and "she couldn't believe it."

Geoffrion said he had called three members of the Flames — Keith McCreary, Noel Price and Pat Quinn — and "they couldn't believe it either.

"But I have to realize I have a family and a wife," Geoffrion said. "You can ask me any kind of question you want but you'll never know why. I'm not going to answer any questions about why I resigned."

Geoffrion, native of Montreal, wound up his playing career with the Rangers after spending 14 seasons with the Canadiens. He scored 393 goals in 883 regular-season games and 58 in 132 playoff games.

He was named coach of the Rangers in 1968-69 but was forced to vacate the job because of a stomach ailment. He was then named to the Rangers' scouting staff and stayed in that capacity until he took over as coach of the Flames on May 22, 1972.

When he retired as a player after the 1967-68 season, he was fifth on the all-time NHL goal-scoring list and eighth on the all-time points list. He was also the second player in NHL history to score 50 goals in a season, 1960-61.

Sunday night's win left the Flames in last place in the Patrick Division with 54 points, one behind third-place New York Islanders. Atlanta has a 22-20-10 record.

During his tenure, Atlanta had a 25-38-15 record in its initial season and reached the playoffs last season with a 30-34-14 mark.

Geoffrion said the Flames were being taken over by a capable coach in Creighton, who has served in the minor leagues for 12 years.

Creighton won three Eastern Hockey League championships at Charlotte and won the Central Hockey League title at Omaha. His coaching record in 2½ seasons at Omaha is 92-68-33.

Bruins, new approach works Orr sparks win over Flyers

For most of this National Hockey League season, says coach Don Cherry, the Bruins have either run into hot goalkeepers, had the puck bounce in funny ways, or a ghastly combination of both. But Sunday they tried a different approach and came away with their best-played game since before the all-star break, a 5-1 victory over Philadelphia Flyers.

Defenceman Bobby Orr had an outstanding game, scoring a goal and assisting on the other four and Gregg Sheppard contributed a pair of goals to the victory.

Bruins struck for three goals in the first period in posting only their third win in the last 10 games.

Phil Esposito made it 2-0 with his 47th goal of the season and the Bruins went on to register their 16th win in 19 starts against the Flyers at Boston Garden. Philadelphia has not won a game in Boston since its first visit, Nov. 12, 1967.

"The puck went in for us tonight," said Cherry. "Sooner or later it had to start bouncing for us."

Victory kept the Bruins nine points behind the front-running Buffalo Sabres in the Adams Division. Buffalo posted an 8-1 win over Kansas City Scouts on Sunday.

In other action, Rod Gilbert scored four goals in a game for the second time in his NHL career but New York Rangers could manage only a 5-5 tie with Detroit Red Wings; Montreal Canadiens took over top spot in the Norris Division by outscoring California Seals, 5-1; Atlanta Flames stopped Minnesota North Stars, 5-3; and Chicago Black Hawks salvaged a 1-1 tie with New York Islanders.

In a game at Oakland, Montreal-goalkeeper Ken Dryden posted his 11th straight victory on the road in helping the Canadiens move two points up on the idle Los Angeles Kings.

Wood advances

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vic Wood of Vancouver drew for the winning point with last rock on the final end to defeat Vancouver's Gene Kraus, 7-6, Sunday in the sudden-death final for the Pacific Coast Curling Association championships.

Wood, with Bob Ward at third, Len Easton at second and Bob Dickson at lead, now advances to the provincial final Feb. 10-11 at Prince Rupert, in a best-of-three series with the B.C. Curling Association champion.

Kraus had come from behind a 6-3 deficit to tie the score at 6-6 by counting three with an 11th end final rock takeout. Earlier, Wood had built up a 5-2 lead by stealing singles on the second, third and fourth ends.

Kraus reached the playoff with a 9-7 win over Gary Sigurdson of Cloverdale, while Wood had qualified by winning four of his first five games.

HONOLULU (AP) — Arnold Palmer backed away from a short putt — then missed it — and let obscure Gary Groh escape with the $44,000 first prize Monday in the rain-plagued Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

Groh, a thin-lipped 30-year-old who had never won before, dropped an 18-foot birdie putt on the final hole just as the once-again frustrated Palmer bogeyed the 17th hole.

It gave Groh a final round of 68, four-under-par on the water-logged course and a 274 total, 14 under par.

For Palmer, the 45-year-old veteran, it was another in a two-year series of bitter disappointments and frustrations. This one may have hurt the most. He got so close — so tantalizingly close — and still failed.

A dramatic turn-around in fortunes late in the round lifted Palmer from a two-stroke deficit into a share of the lead after 16 holes and delighted his large, mud-spattered, barefooted gallery.

But it lasted just long enough for him to miss the green on the 17th, just at the time Groh was playing the 18th hole.

Palmer, seeking an end to a two-year victory drought and making his strongest challenge in that time, chipped seven feet short. He hitched his pants with the old, familiar gesture, stepped to the putt, and hung over it.

Eventually he backed off.

He stepped to the putt again, stroked it and missed.

It was a bogey and his share of the lead was gone.

He finished with a 71 and a 276.

Al Geiberger, the skinny veteran who led or shared the lead much of the bright, warm, sunny day, birdied the 18th hole and claimed a second with a three-under-par 69 and a 275 total, one ahead of Palmer.

Australian veteran Bruce Crampton and Lou Graham tied for fourth at 277—Crampton had a closing 68 and Graham a 72.

Jack Nicklaus, who won this tournament a year ago, closed with a 69 but was well back at 281. He was tied with United States Open champion Hale Irwin, who had a 68.

The 7154-yard course was drenched with five inches of rain that washed out Saturday's play and was subjected to another heavy shower that disrupted play Sunday.

Casual water still formed pools and puddles all over the course and filled a number of bunkers.

Palmer started the day one stroke back but a bogey on the 10th dropped him two behind Geiberger.

Geiberger, howeveer, three-putted the 15th and made bogey from a bunker on the 16th just as Palmer rolled in a five-foot birdie putt.

Groh, playing one hole in front, bogeyed the 17th from a wet trap and suddenly Palmer had a share of the lead. It lasted only long enough for him to bogey the next hole.

Forrest Fezler fired a 68 Sunday to take the lead from Geiberger but he had a 40 on the front nine Monday to blow his chances.

Scorpions drop rough opener

Champions of the Dogwood Inter-City Senior "A" Men's Basketball League, the Scorpions played their first playoff game Sunday, lost, 103-102, to Burnaby-New Westminster Broncos and now are on the brink of elimination.

The best-of-three semi-final resumes Saturday at 8 p.m. at Central Junior High School and if a third game is necessary it will be played 2 p.m. Sunday at Central.

Scorpions played well enough to win Sunday — they defeated Burnaby three times in four league games — but Derek Sankey's basket with less than 30 seconds remaining gave Burnaby the win.

Scorpion coach Howard Tooby said Monday that the game was very physical and that the taller and heavier Broncos used roughhouse tactics, particularly against league-leading scorer Bob Burrows, who still managed 37 points.

Brian McKenzie played a strong game, hitting for 25 points, but Dave Morgan, who averaged 16.3 points per game over the season, had trouble with his shooting and managed only six points.

Sankey, who was second to Burrows in league scoring, topped the Broncos with 32 points and was their leading intimidator.

Tooby said that he didn't plan to make many changes, but that there would be some minor adjustments in the defence.

Doug Regimbal started the Ocean squad off right with a 213 first game and finished with the team high of 567, three more than anchor-man Roy Jago, who rolled a 205 second game. Leadoff Don Gamble rolled 521, Ray Anderson hit for 500 and Don McIntosh 538.

Bowling in the final shift, Ocean X started with a blazing 948 first game, slipped to 897 in the second and finished up with an 845.

The Prunes, who had a handicap of 174 got a pair of 600-plus series from brothers Brian and Ken Grexton and won the scratch championship with 2871 total.

Ken, rolled a 632 and Brian a 602, to go with Henry Loo's 556, Bernie Nikkels' 561 and Don Norbury's 510.

Haida Monarch's first run

Giant log carrier 'successful'

The Haida Monarch, a $8.2 million self-propelled log carrier, has joined Kingcome Navigation's Pacific Coast fleet of barges and tugs after successfully completing her inaugural run with a huge load of MacMillan Bloedel timber.

The Monarch, built at Yarrows, Esquimalt, and commissioned into service late last year, hauled several thousand tons of logs from Gambier Island in Howe Sound north to MacMillan Bloedel's Powell River division.

Roy Henderson, manager of Kingcome — MacMillan Bloedel's towing and barging subsidiary — said he was "completely satisfied" with the new vessel's performance, particularly the way she handled during the actual dumping procedure.

"This first voyage of the Haida Monarch has proved the concept of the self-dumping, self-loading, self-propelled log carrier as a practical and efficient method of moving logs in large volume," said Henderson.

He was one of four persons who stayed aboard the Monarch when she unloaded for the first time at Powell River in mid-January. The vessel employs a system of ballast tanks and pumps that settle her deep in the water, then tilt her to port to slide the logs off the deck and into the water.

Henderson sees this addition to his fleet as the logical outcome of a pattern of water transportation development that began with huge cable-strapped bundles called Davis rafts and sailing ship hulls as methods of moving logs from the Queen Charlottes to the mills.

There are other self-loading and self-dumping log barges afloat, says Henderson, but none of them is self-propelled.

The concept was evolved by Kingcome personnel in Vancouver, refined and designed by the North Vancouver naval architectural firm of Talbot - Jackson and Associates. The Haida Monarch was built by Yarrows, and her engines came from General Motors in Ontario.

The new vessel's statistical profile is as impressive as her silhouette is strange to British Columbia's coastal shipping lanes. She is 423 feet in length with a loaded draught of 20½ feet and a carrying capacity of 15,000 tons of logs. Her twin engines are capable of 7,200 horsepower for a top speed of 14 knots and an average of 11 knots when fully loaded.

The two loading cranes on the deck operate off electrical generators and each is capable of lifting 50 tons of logs. Henderson said the Haida Monarch can load 1,000 tons an hour, for a total loading time of about 15 hours.

Henderson said the big advantage in operating a self-propelled log barge is speed. The Haida Monarch makes the trip from the Queen Charlottes to Port Alberni in about 45 hours, compared with the 75 hours it takes a conventional log barge towed by a tug.

Another important consideration that went into construction of the vessel was crew comfort. The deckhands' cabins aboard the Haida Monarch are comparable to the accommodation provided tourist-class passengers aboard cruise ships: tasteful and functional, if not sumptuous, Henderson said.

All the cabins are soundproofed. Facilities for the dozen crew members include a recreation room, modern mess room, and there's even a large-screen television set aboard.

B.C. federal Liberal caucus

Briefs air UIC 'red tape', lack of adequate housing

PORT ALBERNI — Bureaucratic red tape and abuses in the Unemployment Insurance Commission, lack of adequate housing and weak gun control laws were outlined in briefs presented to the British Columbia federal Liberal caucus during the weekend.

Members of Local 1-86 of the International Woodworkers of America, said Saturday re-establishment of local UIC offices with the authority to investigate cases and issue cheques is the answer to growing bureaucracy and inefficiency in the UIC.

IWA members Earl Foxcroft, Bill Hawkes and Mike Kokura of Port Alberni said that in one "not isolated" case, one of their members dealt with the UIC 18 weeks before receiving cheques on a regular basis.

Agreeing there are abuses in UIC collection, the IWA members said the requirement of making four job applications for each week of unemployment can be ludicrous, particularly in towns dominated by seasonal industry where "such a system would simply drive local businessmen crazy."

"It is the honest individual who now is getting lost in the red tape," the brief says. "Those who want to cheat know all the tricks and it is the honest person who ends up having to go to welfare in desperation."

A brief from Don Gardner of Port Alberni, representing the Vancouver Island Real Estate Board, criticized federal cancellation of the tax on building materials as an answer to inadequate housing supply. Parliamentarians tend to think changes in such taxation have an effect on a given family's ability to buy a house, but that is not so, the brief said.

The cancellation of the tax only puts more money into sellers' pockets, Gardner said, "since the cost of units has no influence upon the end price of a unit, other than a developers' decision whether to construct."

A group of law students from Port Alberni district high school asked the caucus to enact tough gun control laws, abolishing the use of all handguns except those used by police and peace officers.

The students also said, persons applying for a licence to own a gun should be given a mandatory course on maintenance and handling of weapons and a psychiatric stability test. The licence should be renewed every two years, with a psychiatric exam each time, they added.

Participating in the caucus were: Hugh Anderson, MP for Comox-Alberni and chairman of the caucus, senators George Van Roggen, Guy Williams and Ray Perrault; Revenue Minister Ron Basford, and MPs Iona Campagnolo, Simma Holt, Art Lee, Len Marchand, Jack Pearsall and Marke Raines.

Although no immediate solutions were offered to the issues raised in the briefs, the opportunity to air them was appreciated by at least one member of a group.

"This is the first time I've really felt that we got through to the federal level on the face-to-face basis with our problems," he said. "They were very helpful in telling us what our chances were."

The next caucus will be held in Prince Rubert in April.

Questions at public meeting

By JOHN HENDERSON
Colonist Correspondent

PORT ALBERNI — Fewer than 100 residents turned up for a public meeting at the Echo Recreation Centre here, to meet and question eleven members of the of the British Columbia federal Liberal caucus.

The meeting was broadcast over a network of radio stations in Alberni, Campbell River and Courtenay, and listeners in all three centres were invited to phone in questions.

Asked why a formula which had been applied under the Veteran's Land Act could not now be used to help the housing crisis, Basford said he thought this would be impossible.

However, he said, current measures recently introduced to assist Canadians purchase homes under the Housing Act and through tax concessions would have a definite impact, and he said he was sure such programs and the amounts of funds available would be increased if the cost of housing did not come down.

Replying to a question on racial discrimination in Canada's immigration policies, Lee said he does not believe there are any direct racial overtones in the policy, but that possibly Canada discriminates in applying "a Canadian middle-class status that people from the third world simply do not and cannot come up to."

Basford, asked to explain what the natural gas quarrel is all about, said that while the whole question of Canadian resources is a complex one, what "it simply boils down to is" the division between consumer and producer, and the division between the federal and provincial governments.

"It is of course the federal government's stance that all Canadians have the inherent right to share in any revenues produced by the country's natural resources, wherever they are found," he said.

"The Americans are fully sympathetic to our desire to sell such commodities as natural gas at current international prices," he claimed.

"But to hit them immediately with an increase from 63 cents to $1.93 would have a terrific impact and be an unnecessary problem for what is still our biggest trading partner," he said.

Basford defended Turner for his "alleged" words against unions. Turner had been discussing world conditions, Basford claimed, and had said that prices were the prior cause of world inflation.

He (Turner) had then merely said that labor was now "reacting" to these price increases in their demands, Basford said.

Courtenay lawyer elected Conservative candidate

By BILL SMITH
Colonist Correspondent

COURTENAY — City lawyer Victor Stephens who admits he is not a "hard core" conservative, will carry the party banner in the next provincial election for the Comox constituency.

He was the unanimous choice of 95 delegates attending the party's nominating convention here Saturday, and is the first candidate chosen by the party to contest the next election.

"I am not a hard core Conservative, some of the party beliefs are not my beliefs," Stephens said, but this party has policies which come the closest to my thinking.

He said of party leader Scott Wallace, "He is the man with the most integrity who sits in the legislature today."

Stephens, nominated by Alan Lazerte, a Campbell River Lawyer who contested the last federal election, said the economic climate in the province has changed radically since the New Democratic Party came to power.

He accused the government of insiduously chipping away at people's rights and placing these rights in the hands of a government which says, "trust us."

Delegates were told the party must be a party of reason, "We can't play the game of derisive politics the other two parties are playing."

Admitting that trade union development has been an honorable movement, Stephens said it should not be forgotten that unionists achieved this in a free enterprise society

"We are out for, and we will get the union vote," Stephens said.

He accused businessmen of "running scared," saying that they are succumbing to a fear campaign by the Socreds.

People, he said, are afraid to support the Tory party because they have been told they would be splitting the vote. "This is part of the Socreds plan of regaining power on a fear ticket.

Fat worries health chief

He said Friday a national survey shows a great number of British Columbians are overweight and he urges people to give greater consideration to the food they eat.

Cocke said many people are buying quantity, but not nutritional quality, in their food and the health department is concerned about problems arising from poor eating habits.

Malaspina College

Course publicized, division head says

NANAIMO — Every effort has been made by Malaspina college officials to encourage sufficient enrolment in a trades qualification course here so the course would not have to be cancelled, a college spokesman said Monday.

John Buckingham, head of the continuing education division of the college, said earlier reports concerning the course by a Nanaimo man who had enrolled contained erroneous and misleading information.

Jerry Davey of Nanaimo, had said earlier that the course would be cancelled Monday unless there were 12 students enrolled. Davey said he thought that since the provincial labor department was sponsoring the course with the college, there should be less emphasis on the financial end of putting on the course and more attention should be paid to the needs of the six men who had signed up.

The course provides upgrading for men who have worked at carpentry for four years or more, and allows them to write examinations to obtain their carpenters qualification ticket.

Davey was also critical of the college for not giving the course adequate publicity to encourage enrolment.

Buckingham said that in addition to more than 20,000 direct mail folders which outlined courses available at the college's three divisions this semester, the carpenter's union canvassed its membership for students and circulars were also sent out by the provincial labor department.

"We can't beat people into attending the course and if after all the efforts on our part, the enrolment is not sufficient to support the cost, we must cancel the course," Buckingham said. He also said that a recent change in Canada manpower department policy means that the department will no longer pay tuition fees for night course.

Going underground

One of Duncan's major roads, Canada Avenue, is undergoing major facelift. Street's overhead wiring is being put underground under a project which will cost $87,000. City, B.C. Hydro and provincial government are each paying one third of cost under Power and Telephone Beautification Fund Act.

Crown drops rape charge

NANAIMO — One charge of rape and one of indecent assault laid here last week were dropped in provincial court Monday.

Robert Earl Charlie was charged with rape and Frederick Orland Stevenson with indecent assault after an incident Jan. 27 which police said, involved a 17-year-old Nanaimo girl.

The two men had been remanded without election of plea when they appeared in court on the charges last week.

When they returned to court Monday morning, prosecutor Charles Gruse told Judge Stan Wardill that after reviewing the available evidence, "It appears the Crown cannot prove lack of consent by the girl" and therefore, applied to have the charges withdrawn.

Judge Wardill agreed.

Playback bugs Yukon member

Erik Nielson told the Commons that earlier Monday afternoon he had just finished a call to a constituent from his office when "there was after that a disconnect and then I heard to my surprise a repeat of my comments and those of my constituent."

The conversation playback continued for about 10 seconds and Nielsen said "the repeat was speeded up. It sounded like a 33 record being played at 45."

The Yukon MP asked Speaker James Jerome to investigate the telephones of all members of Parliament to determine "the possible monitoring or tapping of members' telephones."

Jerome said he hoped there was "some sort of technical explanation" and promised a report soon.

Legislature faces CUPE pickets

By STEPHEN BREWER
Colonist Reporter

Garbage piled at the impromptu heliport garbage site off Esquimalt Road caught fire Monday night, for the third time since Victoria city outside workers have been on strike.

This time 15-mile-an-hour winds drove flames and loose burning material toward gasoline storage tanks a few hundred yards away.

Victoria fire department's full night force of 14 men and four trucks was called in to douse the flames, and it took more than an hour. The last fire at the temporary dump took one truck's crew five hours to put completely out.

Fireman at the scene Monday night said the fire could have started from smouldering garbage being dumped, but it was just as likely that some young prankster touched it off.

Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees may throw a picket line around the British Columbia legislative buildings today in an effort to stop workers there from emptying the government's garbage.

Jim Walker, president of the City of Victoria outside workers' local, said late Monday his local was considering the pickets in an attempt to keep members of the British Columbia Government Employees Union from hauling paper trash away from the buildings.

The trash, normally carried to a recycling depot in city trucks, had been accumulating in a central courtyard of the Legislature complex since last week, when Local 50 began a legal strike against the city.

Monday morning BCGEU members — acting under orders from the government — apparently collected the trash and hauled it away.

Walker said his union has picked up the Legislature's trash "for years and years . . . and we consider it our work."

Local 50's executive was attempting to arrange a meeting with the executive of the BCGEU component executive responsible for the trash removal Monday, Walker said.

If the meeting could not be arranged, or if its results were unsatisfactory, Local 50 would very probably throw up a picket line in an effort to keep the provincial workers from "doing our work," he added.

Spokesmen for both the Greater Victoria School District and CUPE Local 382 — now in a legal position to strike the schools — said late Monday there would likely be no interruption of classes in District 61 today.

The statements came as area municipalities, School District 61 and the Capital Regional Board continued preparations to lock out their workers in the wake of last week's strike by Local 50.

"A number of things point to something happening early this week," Bill Stavdal, spokesman for the regional bargaining group, said Monday.

Lockout notice against all CUPE locals involved in negotiations with the group — whose number includes Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Sidney, the regional district and the school board — has expired.

But lockouts against at least three CUPE locals cannot become legally effective until provincially-appointed mediator Clark Gilmour files his reports on each dispute with Labor Minister William King.

Efforts are still being made to reach agreements with CUPE locals in Sidney and Esquimalt and with the school district's office staff.

Neither Sooke nor Saanich school district is involved in the strike-lockout confrontation, as trustees of those districts have elected to bargain individually with CUPE locals representing their workers.

All operations, including night school, will continue uninterrupted in those districts, spokesmen said Monday.

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Garbage was piling up, streets were beginning to look unsightly, and a weary managerial staff inside Victoria's City Hall was trying desperately to meet urgent needs as the strike by the city's outside workers entered its second week Monday.

In a City Hall office normally crowded by dozens of employees now refusing to cross the outside staff's picket lines, lone city comptroller Mason Sheldrick was sorting through hundreds of letters that had arrived in the morning mail.

Claire Songhurst, a non-union secretary, was on the switchboard, trying to answer a never-ending stream of phone calls about where to deposit garbage, when and how to pay water bills, and where to pay tax bills.

Assistant city engineer William Jorgensen was wandering about City Hall in work clothes, ready to respond to such emergencies as broken water mains.

In the second-floor cafeteria, Mayor Peter Pollen, in a light-grey business suit, was waxing philosophical about union demands, the community's deteriorating ability to pay for those demands, and the possibility of ultimate chaos.

Pollen said the city "has a non-union firm" willing to fill the tanks, but "we don't want a confrontation."

Scattered few supervisors try to keep things going

The result is no heat in City Hall, the court building, the police station, a number of shops in Centennial Square, and the Silver Threads centre.

City Manager James Bramley said the biggest problem is the lack of garbage collection.

Bramley said people were "just dumping it by the side of the road." He urged residents to carry the garbage farther, toward the rear of the heliport.

Sheldrick said he was opening up to 4,000 letters a week. That's besides his regular job, which includes preparation of the payroll.

He said although the inside and outside staff were now off the payroll, there were still firemen, policemen and all the managerial staff to look after.

Outside workers on picket duty appeared in good spirits. They were joking and laughing as they paraded up and down in front of City Hall.

Spokesmen for both management and union said hopes for a quick settlement of the strike were fast fading.

Pollen said the most frustrating thing was that the Canadian Union of Public Employees had never stated its demands clearly.

"Very late in the game, they told us they want parity with Alberni, but that was never mentioned early on," he said.

"They also vaguely hint that they want parity with the provincial employees, but never said so during bargaining," Pollen added.

"If they only told us what they want," he said.

Immigration policy study

Open door—who and how?

OTTAWA (CP) — A Government study of immigration policy Monday raised the possibilities of an immigration quota system and preference for French-speaking immigrants, but was accompanied by a promise of non-discrimination on the basis of race, color or creed.

The four-volume study, tabled in the Commons by Immigration Minister Robert Andras, offered Canadians four alternatives on immigration policy and said important decisions must be made now which would affect the country's population and life style for decades to come.

The study, known as the green paper, is intended to stimulate public and political debate and consultation.

"What finally is at stake is no less than the future of Canada's population — its size, rate of growth, distribution and composition . . ." Andras told the Commons.

He said no single policy choice would offer a complete answer to the complex problems of rapidly growing big-city populations resulting from increased immigration pressures. He outlined plans for extensive consultations with the public before final decisions are made in about a year.

The policy alternatives outlined in the 370-page document include:

- Immigration quotas with annual global targets for immigration, including quotas for zones or countries.
- Annual global ceilings with no fixed immigration quota system, allowing the government to set a limit on immigration from all areas in consultation with the provinces.
- Stronger measures to gear the existing open-ended immigration system more closely to job availability — probably resulting in a downgrading or outright elimination of the nominated relatives class of immigrant, or;
- Retention of the existing system, which sets no quotas but requires most classes of immigrants to score at least 50 points on a 100-point grading system.

Andras said the alternatives were "critical to the very fabric of the Canadian community."

He said outside the Commons that the government wanted to introduce a new Immigration Act to replace the existing 1952 legislation by fall, and see it made law by early next year.

Andras said the government was determined to retain key principles in any new immigration policy — non-discrimination against newcomers because of race, color or creed, continued acknowledgment of the need to reunite families and to give special aid to refugees, and continued linking of immigration to domestic job demands.

He said outside the Commons that he did not expect racism to become a threatening element in the national immigration debate that the government hoped to generate with the green paper.

"Canadians have really been extraordinarily tolerant in accepting strangers within our gates," he said.

New immigration policies will have to place strong emphasis on immigration from French-speaking countries if

'Conscript young people to cure jobless problem'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of British Columbia geologist says a three-year period of compulsory national service for every citizen is the only way to cure unemployment woes in Canada's primary industries.

Speaking before a Vancouver Institute audience, Harry Warren said there are many necessary but unpleasant jobs to do, without which "society, as we know it, will grind to a halt."

Since no one has yet come up with an equitable and generally acceptable way of persuading people to do these jobs, Warren said, compulsory service — "before (a man or woman) is allowed to proceed, largely at state expense, to higher education or chosen avocation" — may be necessary.

Warren admitted he doubts anybody will agree with his idea, but added, "Surely I am justified in asking you to come up with a better one."

Under the Warren scheme, each citizen could opt for service in the armed forces or a primary industry, such as mining or lumber.

"It might be possible for religious and conscientious objectors to do their stint in one of the more boring of the service industries," he said.

During the compulsory service period, he added, workers should receive their food, clothing, board and pocket money — "but no more."

Saying that his scheme would reduce unemployment and produce wealth — "not merely distribute and redistribute (it)" — Warren said the present lack of willingness by mine workers to take jobs in remote northern areas is "contributing directly to both unemployment and inflation."

Warren criticized the labor movement because it "dislikes industries which are energy-intensive and light on manpower."

He said he made a tour of northern mines two years ago and found all of them in need of more workers.

Deadly gas leak 'too minor' to trip shutoff

DENVER CITY, Tex. (UPI) — An oil company spokesman said Monday the leak in a pumping station that killed nine people was so small it failed to trigger an automatic device designed to prevent the escape of dangerous gas.

"It was a terrible accident and we must spend many days to make sure we know what caused it and how to prevent anything like this ever happening again," said Carter Barcus.

"We have an automatic shutoff valve which is activated by a pressure change. But for some reason the leak was so minor that it did not cause a major pressure change, and therefore the automatic valve did not shut off."

The small leak caused by the failure of a safety device in the wellhead began after dark Saturday and, by the time it had been closed and the cloud of hydrogen sulphide and carbon dioxide gas dispersed, nine people nearby had died.

Police equipped with breathing devices Sunday morning found J. C. Patton, his wife, Glenda, their daughter, Deede, 17, Mrs. Patton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. May, and Mrs. Patton's sister and husband, Alma Lee Amerson, and his wife, Edith, and Clara Peevy, 14, an overnight guest.

Steve Sparger, 19, an employee of Atlantic Richfield who came to investigate the leak, was found dead in his truck.

A neighbor of the Pattons, Mrs. Tom Merrill, may have been the first to notice the gas. She called Mrs. Patton, who reported the bad-smelling gas to police.

A few minutes later Mrs. Patton called Mrs. Merill back to say her husband had collapsed. Then, still later, she called her pastor and asked him to pray for her and her family.

Police officer Jim Tucker was the first person to reach the Patton home.

Police baffled over slasher

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police conceded Monday they were stalemated in their search for the mysterious "slasher," the killer of nine single men who switched his attacks on his last two victims from the down-and-out skid road area to middle-class Hollywood. The throats of each victim were cut to the spine.

Bomb blasts bank tower

DENVER (UPI) — A bomb planted in a restroom ripped through the sixth floor of the Central Bank tower Monday, injuring four persons including a man who smelled the burning fuse and tried to put it out.

Headed global giant

Food firm boss jumps to death

Duffy said Black's wallet and a substantial sum of money were still on the body when it was found in the middle of the elevated roadway.

Police listed the death as a suicide.

The financier, 53, headed a global business empire dealing in growing, shipping and selling food, but also controlling railways, shipping lines and a telecommunications firm. He had 53,000 employees.

United Brands' twin bases are John Morrell and Co., with headquarters in Chicago, and the United Fruit Co. Division in Boston.

Jets collide four escape

WINDHAM, Vt. (UPI) — Two air force FB11S jet fighter-bombers sideswiped near Magic Mountain ski resort late Monday night, but all four crew members survived when they ejected from the planes, the U.S. Air Force said. There were no ground casualties, a spokesman said, but pieces of wreckage showered the Windham-Londonderry area.
